Normans is not on record. This fits the Lancs name Ravald well but some of the following post-medieval examples in N England may alternatively belong with (3) and others in all parts could belong with (2). Some post-medieval spellings have been influenced by the name of the archangel Raphael and others by place-names in -field.

Early bearers: NW England: Thomas Raval, 1381 in Poll Tax (Manchester, Lancs); William Ravald, 1600 in IGI (Manchester, Lancs); Willmi. 2 English: relationship name perhaps from a Middle English personal name **Raff(f)el*, which might have been a pet form of Rafe (Ralph), but there is as yet no medieval evidence for it. English: relationship name from Anglo-Norman and Middle English Raulf, Ralf, an Old French form of Continental Germanic Radulf, hence the usual latinization of the name as Radulfus. See also Rolfe, Rudolph.

Further information: Ralph was a common personal name among the Normans and from the mid 13th century among the native English. Almost 7% of men in the late 14th century were named Ralph. It was pronounced in a variety of ways, giving rise to a large number of different surnames. Ralf could be contracted to Raff, hence the surname Raff and its diminutive form Raffle. Raulf was sometimes shortened to Raul, giving us Rawle and Rawlin (a pet form, Rawl + -in). It also appears as Rauf, which was often shortened to Rau, hence the surnames Raw and Rawkin ('young Ralph'), as well as Haw, Hawkin, Daw and Dawkin, derived from rhyming pet forms. In late Middle English the diphthong -au- was sometimes simplified to long -a-, later pronounced 'ay' as in modern English day, which accounts for Rafe. This pronunciation of the personal name Ralph is still occasionally found in modern times. Ralph is a learned spelling of Ralf that became common in the 16th century. In Anglo-Norman and Middle English usage, the rarer personal name Rolf was sometimes confused with Ralf, as in the 1308 example. It explains why Ralf is an alternative source for Rolfe, Row, Dow, and their derivatives.

2 English: in NW England, perhaps a variant of Rollinson 'Rowland's son' with unrounding of the vowel.

Further information: Bardsley records that 'in Furness and Cumberland, where Rawlinsons are numerous, Rowland is pronounced Rawland and Rolland' (Reaney and Wilson, at Rawlingson). However, it is difficult to find surnames examples that confirm this explanation. Although the early bearers cited above can be interpreted this way, an alternative explanation is also possible. Rowlandson and Rollynson may be variants of Rawlinson, rather than vice versa (see Rollinson), and the evidence of Robte. Rawlinson, 1594, Agnes Rawlandson, 1735 in IGI (Hawkshead, Lancs), Willm. Rawlinson, 1621, Ja. Rawlandson, 1710 in IGI (Lancaster, Lancs), and Richard Rawlingson, 1623, Michael Rawlandson, 1743 in IGI (Heversham, Westm) suggests that Rawlandson, too, is usually a variant of Rawlinson, with -land- substituted for -lin-.

Early bearers: Milo Rowlandson, 1636, Thomae Rawlinson, 1638, Thomas Rolinson, 1642 in IGI (Melling by Maghull, Lancs).

- Main GB location 1881: Cornwall

English, Cornish: relationship name from the Middle English and Middle Cornish given name Renaudin or Reynoudin, an Old French pet form of Reynold + the diminutive suffix -in. It is also found in the surname of Willelmus Reynnaldyn, 1379 in Poll Tax (Lowick, Northants) but the surname appears to have proliferated only in W Cornwall, where Reynold was still well used as a given name in the 16th century, for example Reynold Menyhy, 1524 in Cornwall Subsidies (Budock). The stress, on the second syllable of Renowden, conforms to Cornish-language patterns rather than the usual English ones.

Further information: The equivalent French surname Renaudin also appears occasionally in English records. Francoise Renaudin, 1698 in IGI (Stepney, Middx), was perhaps from a Huguenot family. Josephine Renaudin, born in France, is registered as living in Paddington (Middx) in the Census 1881. English: (i) locative name for someone who lived by '(the) woodland clearings', a plural form of Middle English rode (Old English **rod*, **rodu*), or for someone who came from a place so named, principally Rhodes in Bury (Lancs) but there are many minor places in WR Yorks similarly named, and in Kent there is Rhodes Minnis, in Elham parish. The Yorks name sometimes alternates with the singular form (see Rhode and Rode). The Rh-spelling was introduced in the 16th and 17th centuries by clerks with a classical education, who associated the name with the Greek island of Rhodes, famous in ancient history and mythology. (ii) variant of Road with post-medieval excrescent -s.
Further information: The surname is particularly common in Yorks and Lancs but occurs with various spellings in smaller numbers widely across England, where it may often represent the post-medieval variant in (ii). However, there is evidence that the Middle English plural form alternated freely with the singular form (see Road). For example, the place-name Road is recorded in Place-Names of Northants as Rode (1086), Roddes (1185), Rodes (1224, 1247), Roode (1402), Rhode (1629), and Road (1775). It may be the source of the following family name, Peter Roads, 1613, James Rhodes, 1684, Joshua Rodes, 1686 in IGI (Easton on the Hill, Northants), but one cannot be sure whether it retains the old plural form of the place-name or is a post-medieval variant of Road + excrescent -s.

Early bearers: Hugh de Rodes, 1219 in Assize Rolls (WR Yorks); Robert dil Rode, 1324 in Lancs Court Rolls, probably identical with Robert del Rodes, 1332 in Subsidy Rolls (Lancs); Johannes de Rode, Ricardus de Rodes, 1379 in Yorks Poll Tax (Holmfirth, WR Yorks); William, Thomas de Rode, Johannes del Rodes, 1379 in Yorks Poll Tax (Bingley, WR Yorks); Johannes de Roydes, 1379 in Yorks Poll Tax (Cumberworth, WR Yorks); Robert de Rodes, 1379 in Yorks Poll Tax (Rotherham, WR Yorks); John Rhodes, 1543 in IGI (Rotherham, WR Yorks); Samuel Rhodes, 1583, James Roades, 1640, Jane Roades, 1796 in IGI (Rochdale, Lancs); James Roodes, alias Roades, alias Roides of Gomersal, 1605–18 in Redmonds, Surnames and Genealogy (Birstall, WR Yorks); John Roodes, 1601, James Roodde, 1607, Sarah Rhodes, 1722 in IGI (Otley, WR Yorks); Andrew Rhods, 1717 in Borthwick Institute (Sheffield, WR Yorks); Robert Roades, 1660, Robert Rhoades, 1676, Thomas Rhodes, 1678 in York Freeman's Register (Yorks).

1 English: locative name, probably chiefly from Rydale in NR Yorks, though there were also places named Rydale (in Westm for example) which could have given rise to hereditary surnames. For example, Johannes Rydale, 1377 in Poll Tax (Wormingford, Essex), and Archibaldo de Rydale, 1379 in Poll Tax (Frolesworth, Leics), imply the possibility of places called Rydale in Essex and Leics but they have not been identified. English: nickname from a Middle English phrase, either ringe (the) rose, where ringe is a verb, or ring on the rose, contracted to ringotherose and ringerose, where ring is a noun. Perhaps it alludes to a game similar to quoits. Compare to ring the bull 'to play a game where participants throw or swing a ring on to a hook fixed upon a wall or target' (1838 in OED).

Alternatively it may allude to a singing dance, of a type preserved in the children's singing game ring-a-ring o' roses, where participants hold hands and dance in a circle, falling down at the end of the song. The game is not recorded in England before 1855 (OED) but was known in Massachusetts about 1790, and may derive from an adult dance of older date.

English: locative name from Ripon (WR Yorks).
Further information: In Norfolk and Suffolk Surnames, p. 76, McKinley notes that the surname de Rypun is recorded in Norfolk from the end of the 13th century, and suggests that it is derived from the hamlet of Rippon in Hevingham (Norfolk). Compare also Robertus de Ripon’, 1379 in Poll Tax (Thorpe next Norwich with Pockthorpe, Norfolk), and Thomas Rypon’, 1379 in Poll Tax (Wroxham with Salhouse, Norfolk). However, there is no certain evidence that a surname with this origin has survived into modern times, and since members of the medieval Yorks family or families called (de) Ripon were merchants, it is not out of the question that some had migrated to Norfolk.

Early bearers: Robert de Ripon, about 1154–7 in Mowbray Charters; Thome de Ripun, 1212 in Pipe Rolls (Notts and Derbys); Henry of Ripun, 1268 in Feet of Fines (Yorks); Thomas de Ripon, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Nottingham, Notts); Johanne de Rypon’, 1377 in Poll Tax (York); Ricardus de Rypon’, 1379 in Poll Tax (Lonsdale wapentake, Lancs); Michaelis de Ryllepon’, 1379 in Poll Tax (Pontefract, WR Yorks); Willelmus de Rypon’, 1379 in Poll Tax (Ripon, WR Yorks); Rogerus de Rypon, 1379 in Poll Tax (Timble, WR Yorks); Johannes de Rypon’, 1381 in Poll Tax (Wormhill, Derbys); Johannes de Rypon’, 1381 in Poll Tax (Kirby Grindalythe, ER Yorks); Peter Rypon, 1402–3 in Feet of Fines (Warwicks); John Ripon, 1437–8 in Feet of Fines (Surrey); Thomas Rippon, 1561 in IGI (Lanchester, Durham); Samuell Ripon, 1578 in IGI (Halifax, WR Yorks); John Rippon, 1601 in IGI (Skipton, WR Yorks); Henrye Rippin, 1594 in IGI (Southwick, Hants); Isabell Rippen, 1602 in IGI (Newcastle upon Tyne, Northumb); Edvardi Rippon, 1606 in IGI (Edensor, Derbys); Maria Rippon, 1611 in IGI (Medbourne, Leics); John Ripon, 1613 in IGI (Nottingham, Notts); John Rippin, 1616, Jhon Rippon, 1620 in IGI (Lincoln, Lincs); Thomas Rippon, 1631 in IGI (Lancaster, Lancs); John Rippin, 1635 in IGI (All Hallows the Less, London).

1 Norman, English: locative name from Old French and Middle English roche 'rock, cliff, promontory', sometimes a translation of Stone. The surname may have denoted someone who lived on or by a prominent rock or rocky place, or someone who lived or came from a place so named, such as one of those called Roque or Roche(s) in Normandy (compare Roches) or Roche in Cornwall, Roach Farm in Clyst Hydon (Devon, which was home to the 1330 early bearer), or Roch in Pembrokes (see Roch).

2 English: (i) locative name in Lancs perhaps referring to the River Roch, which runs through

Rochdale. The river is generally known as Rache or Rached in Middle English but an alternative pronunciation with an o vowel is implied by the place-name spelling Rochedale (1246 and 1292) alongside the more usual Rachedal(e) (1242–1341). The 1379 form del Roche occurs in Balderstone, situated to the south of the Roch valley, but it could alternatively allude to a rock or cliff there and so belong (with any of the following post-medieval bearers) under (1). From the 18th century onwards the name is difficult to distinguish from Roch, borne by Irish migrants to S Lancs, especially Liverpool. (ii) locative name; alternatively the Lancs name could be a reduced form of the now rare or extinct surname Rochdale alias Rachedale, Rachdall, from Rochdale (Lancs). Compare Roberto de Rachedale, 1379 in Poll Tax (Great Harwood, Lancs); Cicely Rachdall, 1604 in IGI (Huyton, Lancs); Ales Rochdale, 1612 in IGI (Frodsham, Cheshire).

Roderick

Variants: Rodrick, Rhoderick, Rhydderch

- Current frequencies: GB 1345, Ireland 7
- GB frequency 1881: 1038
- Main GB location 1881: S Wales: esp. Glamorgan

Welsh: relationship name from a learned form of either of two Welsh given names, Rhodri and Rhydderch. In Rothericus son of Gryfin, 1303 in Feudal Aids, the given name is a clerical rendering of Welsh Rhodri, in which the final syllable has been latinized as -ricus in the manner of Old French names in -ri or -ry (e.g. Henry, latinized as Henricus). Vernacular use of Roderick for Rhodri is first recorded in the 16th century. It is partly an antiquarian revival of the Latin form, but it may also show confusion of Rhodri with Rhydderch (see Prothero). From the 18th century Roderick was increasingly substituted for Rhydderch in Wales.

Further information: Some dictionaries mistakenly assert that Roderick derives from a hypothetical Old English or Old Scandinavian given name. There is no evidence to support this speculation, nor is there any basis for the claim that a French version of Continental Germanic (H)rodric was brought to England by the Normans. The Germanic name is, however, the source of Spanish Rodrigo, and this was anglicized as Roderick in literary works by Tobias Smollett (The Adventures of Roderick Random, 1748), Sir Walter Scott (The Vision of Don Roderick, 1811), and Robert Southey (Roderick, the Last of the Goths, 1814). In 19th- and 20th-century Britain 'Spanish' Roderick was probably confused with Welsh Roderick and with the Scottish use of Roderick for Gaelic Ruaidhri. Compare Roderick Dhu in Sir Walter Scott's The Lady of the Lake.

Early bearers: given names: Rothericus son of Gryfin, 1303 in Feudal Aids; Roderic Richards, son of Richard Rhydderch, 18th cent. in History of Cardigans. surnames: Siôn Rhydderch, alias John Roderick, 18th cent. in Morgan and Morgan; Margaret Rhurtherch viz. - 1 Norman, English: relationship name from the Middle English and Anglo-Norman French personal name Rolf, Roulf, Rou, Roul, Rouf, Rof. Its usual derivation is from Old Scandinavian Hrólfr, Rolf. Found as the name of a peasant in Danish Lincs, it must sometimes be Anglo-Scandinavian, but the name was also common in Normandy where it became Old French Roul, Rou, often latinized as Rollo and it is to this that the frequency and variety of the surnames are mainly due. However, some of these names have alternative origins. There has been confusion with Ralf.

2 Norman, English: relationship name from the Anglo-Norman personal names Rolf, Rouf, Rou, etc., occasionally derived from Continental Germanic Rodulf. In origin it is the same name as Old Scandinavian Hrólfr (earlier **Hróðúlf*), but in a West Frankish form, which the Scandinavian Normans occasionally used. They sometimes confused it with Continental Germanic Radulf, Anglo-Norman Ralf, Rauf, as in the 1308 example below. It accounts for the occurrence of Row, Dow, and Rowson as patronymics meaning ‘son of Ralph’.

sumames: Denis Rauf, Denis Rolf, 1308 in Essex Archaeological Transactions 18 (Essex).

English: (i) relationship name from the Middle English personal names Rouland or Roulin; see Rowland, Rowling. (ii) alternatively, and perhaps more likely in most cases, a post-medieval pronunciation of Rawlinson.

Further information: Redmonds notes that Abigail Rawlinson was taxed in Sheffield in 1662 (Hearth Tax) but was consistently named as Abigail Rollinson in the parish register. His derivation of Rollinson from Rawlinson is highly plausible in view of the fact that Rawlinson is generally recorded earlier than either Rollinson or Rowlandson in those counties where the latter surnames appear. The change to Rowlandson would be through folk etymology. On the other hand, the correlation of Edm. Rollinson, 1563, and Miles Rawlinson, 1610 in IGI (Heydour, Lincs) might be interpreted as evidence for the reverse process, where Rollinson was pronounced Rawlinson.

Moreover, Rowland appears as a given name in the 1379 Poll Tax Returns for Westmorland (Redmonds, Christian Names, p. 112) and therefore could be a source of the surname in NW England. More evidence is needed to settle the matter.

- 1 Scottish: locative name from one or other of a number of Scottish and English places called Ross or Roos(e), especially Roose (Lancs) and Roos (ER Yorks), but see also (2). Some of the following bearers may alternatively belong with other senses.
Further information: The Scottish surname has at least three origins. First, the Anglo-Norman family from Roos (ER Yorks) was introduced to Scotland when Robert of Roos, lord of Wark Castle (Northumb), married Isabella, an illegitimate daughter of King William the Lion. Second, various families took the name from the province of Ross in N Scotland and other places of that name, which comes from the Gaelic word for a promontory. Third, there were Norman families in Scotland by the 13th century who probably derived their name from Rots in Normandy; see (2). The descendants of Godfrey de Ros, tenant of the de Morville lords of Cunninghame, were major landholders in Ayrshire, and almost certainly took their name from Rots. The Rose family of Kilravock (Nairns) may take their name from either of these three (see Rose). The lairds of Balnagown adopted the surname Ross after the earldom of Ross (to which they considered themselves rightful heirs) had passed into other hands through the female line.

Early bearers: England: Bernard de Rosse, 1177 in Pipe Rolls (Yorks); Philip de Roos, 1246 in Assize Rolls (Lancs); Edwardus Roose, 1544 in IGI (Epworth, Lincs); Matilda Roose, 1547 in IGI (Norwich, Norfolk); Agnes Roose, 1550 in IGI (Rudston, ER Yorks); Joane Roose, 1560 in IGI (Eckington, Derbys); John Rose, 1572 in IGI (Flamborough, ER Yorks); Richard Ross, 1577 in IGI (Witton le Wear, Durham); William Rose, 1577 in IGI (Childwall, Lancs); Dorethea Roos, 1577 in IGI (Belton in Axholme, Lincs); Tho. Scotland: Robert de Ros, 1248 in Melrose Register (Hassington, Berwicks); Alexander Ross, Master William Ross, and William Ross, 1486 in Black; Wilyame Ross, 1584 in IGI (Errol, Perth); Jamess Ross, 1596 in IGI (Monifieth, Angus); Robert Ross, 1596 in IGI (Prestonpans, E Lothian); Donald Ross, 1601 in IGI (Edinburgh, Midlothian); Andro Roos, 1629 in IGI (Saint Monance, Fife); John Roos, 1721 in IGI (Fenwick, Ayr).

2 Norman, English: locative name from Rots in Calvados (France).

Further information: This family had major estates in Kent until well into the 13th century. Around 1100 Herbert de Ros held land at Plumstead, Norfolk. It is not known if he was related to the Kent family or to the de Roos family of ER Yorks mentioned in (1).

Early bearers: England: Anschetillus de Ros, 1086 in Domesday Book (Kent); Serlo de Ros, 1086 in Domesday Book (Beds).

3 English: locative name from Wrose, in Shipley, near Bradford (WR Yorks), with re-spelling of Wr- as R- due to the loss of /w/ before /r/ in early Modern English pronunciation. The place-name is generally spelled Wrose from the 16th century onwards and as Wrosse in 1578 (Place-Names of WR Yorks 3, p. 267), but not as Ross(e) or Rose. However, Redmonds, Dictionary of Yorks Surnames notes that in the parish registers of Farley (WR Yorks) appear William Wrose (1586), John Wrose (1645), and Joshua Wrose or Ross (1684), while in the hearth tax returns of 1672 for Bramley all the members of this family were called Ross. The spelling Wrose is no longer current. Further information: Redmond remarks that Bradford and Leeds were the epicentre of Yorks families named Ross in the 1881 census. It is likely that many or most of them go back to Wrose, but the census returns from 1841 onwards show that some are from Ireland and probably represent Ulster families bearing one or other of the Scottish surnames discussed in (1).

- English: relationship name apparently from an anglicized form of the Welsh or Brittonic personal name Rhydderch (see Prothero). Redmonds, Dictionary of Yorks Surnames notes that the WR Yorks family were retainers of Richard Redman at Harewood Castle and may therefore have moved into Yorks from Cumb where the Redmans originated (see Redmayne). The appearance of a Welsh derived surname in 16th-century Cumb is surprising, and Morgan and Morgan suggest instead that the Cumb surname may have been indigenous to NW England. This supposes that the same personal name was current in post-Conquest Cumb, a remnant of the Brittonic language that was spoken there until about the 11th century, but no evidence has yet been found to confirm the hypothesis.

1 English: perhaps a reduced form of Roughead, which is well evidenced in medieval E Anglia, but some of the following examples could alternatively belong with (2).

Early bearers: Francis Rowte, 1561, Johnes Rought, 1575 in IGI (Redgrave, Suffolk); Thomas Rout, 1616 in IGI (Scarning, Norfolk); Edward Rout, 1673 in IGI (Colchester, Essex); Thomas Route, 1675 in IGI (Shotley, Suffolk); Tho. Rout, 1703 in IGI (Brundish, Suffolk).

- Current frequencies: GB 6772, Ireland 53
  - GB frequency 1881: 4556
  - Main GB location 1881: N England and W Midlands: esp. Durham; Lancs and Cheshire
- English: (i) occupational name from Old French roteor, roteeur, roteeur 'a player on the rote', a musical instrument, a kind of harp or fiddle. The regular modern development of the name would have been to Roter (rhyming with boater), and to Router or Rowter (rhyming with doubter). These variants survive in small numbers, but the principal modern form is Rutter, found in fairly large numbers across England, especially in the north-east and in the west midlands. The shortened vowel in Rutter may have been influenced by rotte, **rutte*, Middle English variants of Old French rote. Compare Root. (ii) nickname from Middle English roter, rotour 'robber, plunderer', also 'scoundrel, lecher', a borrowing of Old French rotier, Anglo-Norman French roturier 'soldier of fortune; robber, highwayman, ruffian'. This is a less likely source of the modern surname.

2 English: locative name from Ryther, near Selby (WR Yorks). Redmonds, Dictionary of Yorks Surnames notes that Robert Ryder and Thomas Rider were sons of William Ryther of Ryther, 1478 in York Guild Register, and that Thomas Ryder of Aldbrough was also named Thomas Ryther in 1592. 3 English: locative name from Middle English ridere 'dweller at a clearing' (see Reader) or 'dweller by a small stream', depending on which sense of Middle English ride the surname is derived from. As the 1599 example shows, it is synonymous with Middle English atte ride. These topographical senses of Rider are limited to the southern counties of England (especially Surrey, Sussex, Hants), where topographical names in -er and the Middle English words ride 'clearing' and rithe 'small stream' are mainly found. Apart from the 1599 form, the other examples may nevertheless belong under (1). See also Ride, Attride.

English: locative name for someone who lived by an area of land where rye was grown (Middle English rie 'rye' + land, lond) or who lived at a place called Ryland with the same meaning. The singular form is often a later alteration of the more common plural form; see Rylands.

1 English: locative name mostly from a plural form of Ryland. Middle English rylandes, -londes refers to the strips of arable where rye was grown within one of the large open fields that were typical of medieval communal farming; as a phrase it could be used to name an open field where rye predominated. This is the source of the Lancs surname, but elsewhere the original form may alternatively have been in the singular with final -s added later. Sometimes spelled Rylande.

Further information: according to Surnames of Lancs, p. 197, 'most of the persons named Rilands who appear in Lancashire during the Middle Ages were members of a single family, from Westhoughton in south-east Lancashire, whose surname was derived from the name (Rylands, Rylandis) of some land there . . . . Forms such as Rilance and Roylance appear from the early 16th century, at first in the south-west of the county.'

- Main GB location 1881: Middx, Kent, and Surrey; Warwicks and Worcs

English: (i) relationship name from Sabel, perhaps a Middle English pet form of the female name Isabel. Compare Willelmo filio Ysabele (1163–82) and Willelmo filio Sabelini (1194) in Clerkenwell Cartulary, who seem to be the same person. However, the genitive form Sabelini implies a male name, and an alternative possibility is that Sabel is a reduced form of Sabelin(e), which Reaney and Wilson, at Sablin, explain as a pet form of Sabin (male or female). (ii) nickname possibly from Middle English sable 'sable, black fur, the colour black', perhaps for a furrier or for someone with black hair, but the absence of medieval evidence for the nickname makes this explanation quite conjectural.

Saladine

- GB frequency 1881: 19
- Main GB location 1881: Cheshire

English: nickname apparently from Saladin (Arabic Ṣalāh al-Dīn), the name of the Sultan of Egypt and Syria, who ruthlessly defeated the Christian Crusader army in 1187 and captured Jerusalem, but who subsequently became a byword for chivalry among Christians from his acts of generosity during the Third Crusade (1189–92). The crusade was paid for in England and France by an unpopular tax known as the ‘Saladin tithe’. The sense of the nickname is uncertain. It may have been given to one who went on the Third Crusade, in which case the surname illustrated below was already hereditary by 1279. Alternatively it may have been given to someone thought to resemble Saladin in some way. The nickname evidently had currency in medieval France, for it also gave rise to a surname there.

1 English, Jewish (Ashkenazic): (i) relationship name from the Old Testament personal name Sal(o)mon, Solomon, the Latin (Vulgate Bible) forms of Hebrew Shelomoh ('the peaceful'), This was the name of the biblical King Solomon, son of David and Bathsheba (1 Chronicles, 22: 4–9). In Old French and Middle English it also commonly appears as Salmon, Salemon, Saumon, Salman, Saleman, and Sauman. The King James Bible of 1611 calls him Solomon, which is why this is the standard form of the name in modern English, but spellings with Sal- were more usual across medieval and post-medieval Christian Europe, the 1534 Lutheran Bible rendering it as Salomo and the 1560 Geneva Bible as Salomon. From the 7th century Salomon is recorded as a Christian given name in France, where it was the name of several saints including a Breton king martyred in 874. The Normans introduced it to England, and it was current as a given name there until at least the end of the 14th century. The derived surname is found throughout 13th- and 14th-century England, mostly in the spellings Saleman and Salman, which eventually became regularized as Salmon. A similar surname arose in continental countries such as France, Germany, and the Netherlands. Salomon was reinforced in England by the arrival of Huguenot migrants in the 17th century. Sal- forms of the surname were also taken up by continental Jewish families, many of whom later migrated with this name to England. A number of English and Anglo-Jewish families also adopted the form Solomon. Some examples of Salmon listed below may alternatively belong with (2). (ii) nickname occasionally perhaps for someone 'as wise as Solomon'. Compare Willelmus dicitur Salamon, 1287 in London Husting Wills, and Chaucre's Canon's Yeoman's Tale, G. 960–1: 'And whan we been togidres euerichoon, Euery man semeth a Salomon'. King Solomon was famed for his wisdom.

Further information: The suggestion in Titford that the surname may sometimes have been given to someone who played the part of King Solomon in a medieval play or pageant is theoretically possible but lacks evidence.

- 1 Welsh: relationship name, nickname from the Old French and Middle English personal name Sam(p)son, Sansom(e), a borrowing of the Biblical name Samson (Hebrew Shimshon). In Wales another association was with the 6th-century Welsh bishop Samson, who travelled to Brittany, where he died and was greatly venerated. His name, which is probably an altered form of an unknown Celtic original, was popularized in England by Breton followers of William the Conqueror, and to some extent independently from Wales. 1 English: locative name from Sarratt (Herts), perhaps from an otherwise unattested Middle English **saret*, **seret*, **siret* ‘dry place’. See Place-Names of Herts, where it is recorded as Syreth, 1077–93 (date of manuscript 14th cent.), [ . . . de] Siret, 1166, Sareth, 1094, 1296, Saret, about 1220, 1301, Sharete, 1248, (La) Sarette, 1255, 1428, Sereth, about 1200, Seret, 1237, Serret, 1281, and Sherrat, 1529–32. Further information: This is the name of an immensely rich and influential Sephardic Jewish family, which in the 18th century was based in Iraq. Sassoon ben Salih (1750–1830), founder of the family, was treasurer to the pashas of Baghdad. His son David Sassoon (1792–1864) moved from Iraq to the Persian seaport of Bushehr and the latter's son Albert Abdullah Sassoon (1818–1912) moved to Bombay, where he built up an international mercantile and shipping empire stretching from Shanghai to London. He and his family moved to London and Brighton during the 1870s and were active in philanthropy and liberal politics. The poet, soldier, and anti-war activist Siegfried Sassoon was a member of this family, but his father had been disinherited for marrying outside the Jewish faith.

Scantlebury

- Current frequencies: GB 636, Ireland 1
  - GB frequency 1881: 460
  - Main GB location 1881: Cornwall
- English: locative name, a form of Canterbury, found in Zennor (Cornwall) in the early 14th century, apparently originating in a dissimilated form seen in William Cantelbury, 1395 in Fine Rolls (Trigg minor) and persisting in Dorothy Cantlebury, 1681 in IGI (Lanlivery, Cornwall).

Further information: The forms with initial S- are not easy to account for. They may have been influenced by the south-western English dialect word scantle 'irregular roofing slate'. The oldest forms without the final syllable, at first restricted to the Lanreath area, also often have -e- in the first syllable, which suggests that the name was at first (mis)understood as if containing Cornish skentyl 'wise' and bew 'life'. There is a difficulty in that the earliest forms with initial S- also appear to be corrupt in the final syllable. Any direct connection with Scantell, as in Ursula Scantell, 1626 in IGI (Saint Budeaux, Devon), is unlikely.

Early bearers: George Skentilbawe, 1522 in Subsidy Rolls (Landulph); John Skentylbery, 1543 in Subsidy Rolls (Tregony borough); George Skentilbery, 1544 in Subsidy Rolls (Saint John); Tamstyn Skentilbew, 1564 in IGI (Lanreath, Cornwall); Regnold Skantilbew,

- Current frequencies: GB 485, Ireland 0
- GB frequency 1881: 266
- Main GB location 1881: Staffs

English: locative name. Tooth suggests it may refer to an unidentified locality in or near Audley (Staffs). It is implied by the surname of Henry Skaryok (1298) or Scarioc (1307), who appears as a tenant in Horton, near Rudyard, in the Audley estate records. Skaryok might refer to a damaged or mis-shapen oak tree (Middle English scarri ‘(?) scraggy’), later developing to Scariot through the common substitution of /t/ for final /k/. Alternatively he suggests that the spellings may be copyists’ errors for Scariot, perhaps a nickname from playing the part of Judas Iscariot in a mystery play. Either way, he notes that Thomas Skarriot appears in 1540 in the Audley parish registers, and that the surname occurs as Scarriat (1559) and Skerratt (1557) in the parish registers of Betley, a few miles SW of Audley. The name also seems to have been thoroughly confused with the Staffs surname Sherrard and its many variants. The two names may have happened to coincide in the odd parish, but the coincidence happens too often to be accidental, as some of the following early bearers illustrate.

Early bearers: Thomas Skerrette, 1539, Jone Skerriotte, 1544, Richard Skerret, 1560, Ellinor Skerritt, 1643, John Skerrott, 1721, Hannah Skerrat, 1732 in IGI (Warmingham, Cheshire); Ellenora Skerriot, 1575, Rad. English: nickname, perhaps a derivative of Middle English scache ‘scaffolding pole’ (Old French eschace) + the uncomplimentary suffix -ard. Alternatively the name may have been given to a maker of scaffolds or a scaffolder. ### Schenk

Variants: Schenck

- Current frequencies: GB 108, Ireland 2
- GB frequency 1881: 60
- Main GB location 1881: London

German, Dutch, Jewish (Ashkenazic): occupational name, status name from Middle High German and Middle Dutch schenke 'cup bearer, wine server' (Old High German scenko, from scenken 'to pour out or serve'), a word that was also used to denote an innkeeper. The modern German word Schenk, with its derived sense 'gift' (originally a gift of an alcoholic drink), is of Middle High German origin, but is unlikely to have had any influence on the surname. In another development, similar to English Butler, the word came to be used as an honorary title for a high court official, and it is likely that some cases of the surname arose from this use.

Further information: At one time in the Russian empire, only Jews were allowed to sell alcohol. As a Jewish name, therefore, this very often denoted an innkeeper.

- Current frequencies: GB 936, Ireland 12
- GB frequency 1881: 407
- Main GB location 1881: Durham; also Northumb

English: (i) occupational name from Middle English scourer, **scorer* 'one who cleanses or polishes items of metal, wood, earthenware, etc. by rubbing hard with a detergent substance'. (ii) occupational name from Middle English scorer 'one who cuts or makes lines on (something)'. The term may have had a number of specialized senses relating to different occupations. The only one on record is 'one who marks trees to be cut down' (MED, before 1395). However, the most common senses of the related Middle English verb scoren are 'to mark (an item on a tally)', hence 'to compute, to record or keep an account (of something)', so scorer may sometimes have denoted 'an accountant or record-keeper'. Compare Scotcher.

Further information: Reaney's suggestion that scorer was a variant of Middle English scourer(e) 'military scout, spy' is an unlikely linguistic development, nor is it a plausible name for a burgess such as William le Scorur of Beverley (1297).

Early bearers: William le Scorur, 1297 in Subsidy Rolls (Beverley, ER Yorks); Alice la Scoriere, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Essex); John Skorer, 1379 in Yorks Poll Tax (Cawthorne, WR Yorks); Hugh Scorer, 1408 in Nottingham Borough Court Rolls (Notts); Robert Scorar, 1475 in York Registry Wills (Cawthorne, WR Yorks); John Scorer, 1568 in Redmonds, Surnames and Genealogy (Barnsley, WR Yorks); Anna Scorer, 1613, Thomas Scorah, 1810 in IGI (Sheffield, WR Yorks); Margaret Scorer, 1638, John Scorah, 1812 in IGI (Darfield, WR Yorks); Thomas Scorer, 1658, John Scorrer, 1768 in IGI (Chester le Street, Durham); John Scorer, 1675, Mary Scorrer, 1790 in IGI (Lanchester, Durham); John Scora, 1693, Frances Scorrer, 1772 in IGI (Newcastle upon Tyne, Northumb); Mary Scorra, 1716, Emanuel Scorer, 1803, George Schorah, 1832 in IGI (Hartshead, WR

Scottish: from the place recorded as Scorgeak in 1633 in Badichell, Fyvie (Aberdeens), according to Black. The record indicates that the surname was pronounced with /dʒ/ rather than modern /g/, and that there was an original final consonant, so Scorguie in Inverness is out of the question.

1 English, Irish, Scottish: (i) ethnic name, English, from Middle English Scot 'a Scot', denoting 'a man from Scotland', not necessarily a Gael. (ii) ethnic name, Scottish and Irish, from Middle English Scot 'a Scot', originally denoting an Irishman, later a Gaelic speaker from Ireland or Scotland.

Further information: The 12th-century Scots of E England may well have been retainers of David I, King of Scotland, who succeeded to the extensive lands of Waltheof, Earl of Huntingdon, on his marriage to Waltheof's daughter. Many of these must have remained in England and their surnames became hereditary, for in the 1327 Subsidy Rolls for Suffolk alone there are 35 men called Skot, and in the late 14th-century Poll Tax there are 343 persons throughout England called by some variant of this name. Some of those in E England may have been retainers of Scottish nobles who accepted Edward I's overlordship and fought against Robert the Bruce. There may also have been some confusion with Scutt.

Variants: Scurfield

- Current frequencies: GB 824, Ireland 12
- GB frequency 1881: 317
- Main GB location 1881: S Wales: esp. Pembrokes

English: of uncertain origin. Though clinching medieval evidence is lacking, it may be a locative name derived from a French place-name, perhaps Ecorcheville (Eure) or Equeurdreville (Manche). A French surname from the former is on record. This would be consistent with the presence of the name in Pembrokes, an early Norman stronghold.

Further information: The Welsh dimension of Scourfield can be traced to a family of this name which lived at the Mote, New Moat (Pembrokes), from the time of Edward I until William Henry Scourfield moved to Roboston Hall in 1780. According to Green, the family descended from Sir Fulke Scourfield of Kendal, Westmorland. The allure of this as an aristocratic name can be judged from the fact that John Henry Phillips, a relative of William Henry, changed his name to Scourfield by royal licence in 1862.

Early bearers: John Skorffyll, junior, of Nova Mota, son of John Skorffyll the elder of the same place, 1439 in Ancient Deeds E; Pyrs Scourfield, 1516 in Ancient Deeds A; Elizabeth Scurtfield, 1562, Thomas Skirfeild, 1577,

1 English: locative name apparently from Middle English scrogges 'bushes', but it has not been possible to find any Middle English evidence for this surname, so the families of the following bearers may in fact have been Scottish migrants who brought the name in (2) to S England.

Scrope

Norman: of uncertain origin. Tengvik suggests derivation from the Old Scandinavian personal name Skrópi (of doubtful etymology, but compare Old Scandinavian skrópa-maðr 'hypocrite', containing the genitive plural form of skrópar 'sham, hypocrisy'). It is possible, but not certain, that this personal name forms the first element of the Notts place-name Scrooby. Otherwise there is no evidence for its currency in England or, more relevantly, in Normandy. Richards Castle (in Herefs and Shrops) was apparently named after Richard Scrope, who held estates in Herefs and Worcs in 1066 and was a Norman favourite of Edward the Confessor. The Scrope family, whose name is traditionally pronounced /skrʊp/, was politically important in medieval England, and acquired estates in Lincs (Barton on Humber), NR Yorks (Castle Bolton), and in ER Yorks (Flotmanby). Richard (Ie) Scrope of Bolton, in Wensleydale, was Lord Chancellor in the reign of Richard II. The use of le and de in the surname, suggesting either a nickname or a locative name, must be treated with caution because these were often added gratuitously to Anglo-Norman surnames as a sign of high social status.

Early bearers: Ricardus Scrupe, 1086 in Domesday Book (Herefs); Osbernus filius Ricardi Scrope, 1086 in Domesday Book (Worcs); Robert Escrupe, 1165, Richard de Scropes, 1190, Henry de Scrupes, 1218 in Pipe Rolls (Gloucs); Robert de Scrop, 1196 in Pipe Rolls (Yorks); Gilbert Escrop, 1210 in Curia Regis Rolls (Lincs); William le Scrop, 1285 in Yorks Survey (Yafforth, NR Yorks); Geoffrey de Scrop, 1316 in Yorks Survey (Warlaby, NR Yorks); Reyner Scropp, 1317 in Norwich Deeds II; Geoffrey le Scrop, 1328 in London Letter Books E; Stephanus Scrop, 1381 in Poll Tax (Fyfield, Essex); Henrici Scroope, 1569 in IGI (Wensley, NR Yorks); Maria Scroop, 1607 in IGI (Swillington, WR Yorks); Fraunces Scroope, 1610 in IGI (Wainfleet, Lincs); John Scrope, 1678 in IGI (Castle Combe, Wilts).

English: locative name from Scupholme in South Somercotes (Lincs).

Further information: The name, originally pronounced with /-ph-/, has developed an alternative spelling-pronunciation with /-f(h)-/. The forms of 1670 and 1737, from Staffs, suggests that Scoffham, now the most frequent form, really does belong with this group of names.

Early bearers: Willelmo de Scopholm', Johanne de Scopholme, 1379 in Poll Tax (Somercotes, Lincs); Marie Scuppam, 1579 in IGI (Coningsby, Lincs); Thomas Skoopholme, 1563, Helen Skupholme, 1596 in IGI (South Somercotes, Lincs); Ambrose Scupham, 1597 in IGI (North Somercotes, Lincs); Elizabeth Scupholme, 1619 in IGI (South Somercotes, Lincs); John Scupham, 1632 in IGI (Wrangle, Lincs); John Scupholm, 1644 in IGI (Grainthorpe, Lincs); William Scuffam, 1670, Thomas Scoffolm, 1737 in IGI (Shenstone, Staffs); Eiabeth Scufholm, 1771 in IGI (Ruckland, Lincs); Bridget Scuffholme, 1800 in IGI

Welsh: unexplained. The name is associated from an early date (1184 and 1250) with two fortified manors in Glamorgan: Scurlage, in Llanddewi in the Gower Peninsula, and Scurla or Scurla', now known as Trecastell, in Llanharry. The origins of the place-names are uncertain; it is not known whether they contain the surname, or whether the surname derives from one or other of them, but the earliest bearer suggests that the place-name came first. Further information: The name does not, as is sometimes claimed, represent a Scandinavian equivalent, or adaptation, of Sherlock.

Early bearers: Wales: William de Scurlog, 1184, Herbert Scurlag, about 1250, William Scurlage, 1250 in Morgan and Morgan, citing Clark; Oliver Scurlock, 1544 in Morgan and Morgan, representing the first William's branch of the family which had migrated to Ireland. Maurice Scurlag or Scurlack was constable of Dublin Castle in 1285; the family had interests near Trim (Meath); and there was return migration to Wales in the 16th cent.

England: Roland Scorlok, 1558 in PROB 11 (no place given); Richard Scurluck, 1696 in IGI (Bristol, Gloucs); Walterus Scurlock, 1721 in IGI (Baswich, Staffs).

English: (i) locative name, perhaps from a lost place described by, or named with, Old English scora 'steep place' or from Old English **scoru* or Old Scandinavian skor 'score, notch, or mark' (perhaps denoting a boundary mark). Compare Score. (ii) relationship name, alternatively perhaps from an unrecorded Middle English personal name **Skur(r)*, from Old Scandinavian Skorri, which is well evidenced as a personal name and nickname in medieval Scandinavia, and possibly derived from the Old Scandinavian word in (i). It may also be evidenced in the ER Yorks place-name Scoreby.

Early bearers: Thomas Skur, 1381 in Poll Tax (Stratfield Saye, Berks); Henricus Skur, 1381 in Poll Tax (Hartley Dummer, Berks); John Scurr, 1577 in IGI (Saint Martin Coney Street, York); Thomas Scurr, 1579 in York Registry Wills (Scawton, NR Yorks); Tho. - English: unexplained. Apparently from Middle English scochoun 'escutcheon, coat of arms' (Anglo-Norman French escuchoune), but there are no known medieval bearers. ### Scutt

Variants: Skutt, Scutts, Scott

- Current frequencies: GB 1073, Ireland 3
- GB frequency 1881: 761
- Main GB location 1881: Sussex

English: (i) nickname for a short person, from Middle English scut(e) 'short'. (ii) nickname, alternatively from Middle English scut 'hare', for a swift runner. (iii) occupational name, nickname possibly from Old French escoute 'scout, sentry, spy', a derivative of the verb escouter 'to listen'. However, the word scout does not appear in English before the 16th century and retains the vowel length which would have to be lost to produce the surname Scut(t).

Further information: the post-medieval name is sometimes found alongside the much commoner name Scott in the same Sussex parish, Fittleworth, suggesting the possibility that one might be a variant of the other or that the names were confused.

Early bearers: Godwin Scut, 1183 in Pipe Rolls (Norfolk); Lefstan Scut, 1190–1200 in Hatton's Book of Seals (Suffolk); John le Scut, 1248 in Assize Rolls (Hants); William le Skut, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Sussex); Robart Scutt, 1570, Alice Scutt, 1674, Frances Scut, 1751, Harriet Scutt, 1847 in IGI (Fittleworth, Sussex); Willmi. 1 English: locative name either toponymic from Seal (Kent), Seale (Surrey), or Sele (Sussex), or topographical for someone who lived at a boggy patch (Kentish Middle English and Old English sele) or a hall (Middle English, Old English sele). For the name in Devon see Zeal.

Early bearers: Robert atte sele, 1332 in Subsidy Rolls (Surrey); Ricardus atte Sele, 1379 in Poll Tax (Lymington, Hants); Thomas Sele, 1379 in Poll Tax (Brading, Hants); John Seal, 1560, Bridgitt Seel, 1595 in IGI (Saint Clement Danes, Middx); Robert Seal, 1572 in IGI (Sidlesham, Sussex); William Seal, 1610 in IGI (Nuthurst, Sussex); Phil Seal, 1689 in IGI (Tonbridge, Kent).

2 English: locative name from Overseal or Netherseal (Derbys), recorded as Seyle and Sheyle in Place-Names of Derbys, p. 645. Some of the following bearers may alternatively belong with other senses.

Early bearers: [ . . . de] Seyle, 1166 in Red Book of the Exchequer (Derbys); Ralph de Sseill, 1185 in Templars Records (Warwicks); Rob'o Sele, Rob'o Scheyle, 1375 in Mansfield Rentals (Notts); Johannes Sayle, 1377 in Poll Tax (Oakham (tenants of the King), Rutland); Agn' Sele, 1379 in Poll Tax (Derby, Derbys); Thoma Sele, 1379 in Poll Tax (Desford, Leics); Johanne Sheyle, 1379 in Poll Tax (Asfordby, Leics); William de Sheyle, 1396 in Patent Rolls; John Seele, 1545 in IGI (Derby, Derbys); Marie Seele, 1579 in IGI (Leicester, Leics); Johannis Seale, 1621 in IGI (Mackworth, Derbys); Robert Seal, 1660 in IGI (Shearsay, Leics); Samuel Seal, 1676 in IGI (Longford, Derbys); Sarah Seel, 1687 in IGI (Horsley, Derbys).

References: Place-Names of Derbys 3, p. 645.

3 English: (i) locative name for someone who lived by a willow copse, from Middle English sele, Old English **sele*. (ii) locative name for someone who lived at place marked by a willow or willows, from Middle English sele 'willow', in N England representing Old Scandinavian selja and in SW England representing Old English (West Saxon) sealh. It was probably interchangeable with the synonymous Middle English sale (Old English salh, Old Scandinavian salr), and in some cases, therefore, the surname may have functioned as a variant of Sale. In SW England initial S- was frequently voiced to Z-, as in the Wilts place-name Zeals (from a plural form of Old English sealh), which may be an occasional source of modern Seal(e), Seel, or Zeal. However, the medieval form of the place-name is overwhelmingly in the plural, and this may also survive as Sales.

Further information: Some of the cited name bearers here may alternatively belong to (1).

Early bearers: N England: Johannes Sele, 1379 in Poll Tax (Anston, WR Yorks); William Seale, 1559 in IGI (Ormskirk, Lancs); Jennett Seale, 1610 in IGI (Kendal, Westm); Samuel Seel, 1710 in IGI (Liverpool, Lancs). 4 English: nickname from Middle English sele 'seal' (Old English seolh), for someone who resembles the animal, perhaps a plump or ungainly person. Some of the following post-medieval bearers may alternatively belong with other senses.

Early bearers: Hugh le Sele, about 1113 in Burton Chartulary (Staffs); Henr. le Seel, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Tamworth, Staffs/Warwicks); Ricardus Sele, 1379 in Poll Tax (Warwicks); William Seale, 1568 in IGI (Worcester, Worcs); Joan Seale, 1569 in IGI (Tamworth, Staffs/Warwicks); William Seale, 1568 in IGI (Worcester, Worcs).

5 English: nickname from Middle English and Old French seel 'seal' (Latin sigillum), perhaps for a maker of seals or signet rings, but there is no evidence that this name became hereditary. Compare Hugh le Selor of York who, in 1333, made a new seal for the bishopric of Durham (Salzman, Industries, p. 132).

Early bearers: Everard de Sigillo, del Sael, 1219 in Curia Regis Rolls (Suffolk).

Sebastian

- Current frequencies: GB 846, Ireland 37
- GB frequency 1881: 15
- Main GB location 1881: Surrey and Middx; Lancs

English, German, Spanish, S French: relationship name from a vernacular form of the Latin personal name Sebastianus, Greek Sebastianos, which was originally an ethnic name meaning 'man from Sebastia', a city in Pontus named with Greek sebastos 'revered' (the Greek equivalent of Augustus). See also Bastian.

Further information: The personal name enjoyed great popularity as a result of the cult of Saint Sebastian, an early martyr (died about 288), a captain of the Pretorian Guard who was shot with arrows for resisting the persecution of Christians by the Roman emperor Diocletian. According to one tradition, he survived the shooting and went on to perform various miracles before being clubbed to death. He is rare in early church dedications (Great Gonerby, Lincs, and Wokingham, Berks), but the frequency of Bastian in SW England may indicate a local cult. This surname is also sometimes borne by Jews, presumably as an adoption of the German or French surname.

Early bearers: William Sebastian, 1616 in IGI (Chesham, Bucks); Sallomon Sebastian, 1630 in IGI (Nottingham, Notts); Nicholas Sebastian (born in France) in Census 1881 (Lancs).

1 Scottish: (i) occupational name from Middle English seller ‘saddler’ (Old French seller, selier).

Philip le Celler, 1319 in Subsidy Rolls (London) is also called le Sadeler (1320 London Letter Books E). (ii) occupational name from an agent derivative of Middle English sell(en) ‘to sell’ (Old English sellan ‘to hand over, deliver’), for a tradesman or merchant. Some of the early bearers may alternatively belong under sense (2) or (3).

Further information: Tengvik and Fransson regard the second explanation as an improbable meaning for the surname, but the very rare Vender still survives. Compare the Latin equivalent Henricus Venditor, 1274 in Hundred Rolls (Lincs). Latin equivalents of Sellar can be seen in Sanson Sellarius, 1175 in Pipe Rolls (Yorks), Walter Sellarius, 1183 in Pipe Rolls (Warwicks). Bodo or Bondo Sellator (1175–7 Pipe Rolls, Suffolk) was a saddler (sellator ‘saddler’, 1224 in Revised Medieval Latin Word List), but this may be a translation of either the French seller or the English saddler. The frequent form Seler, sometimes for ‘sealer’ and sometimes for ‘cellar’, may also mean ‘saddler’. Compare also the word Sele, glossed as ‘horsys harneys’ by Randle Cotgrave (1611) A Dictionarie of the French and English Tongues.

Further information: The Old English name of the Gloucester moneyer Seolhwine (Fran Colman, Money talks (Berlin, 1992), p. 112) appears to have seolh ‘seal (the mammal)’, and is another possible source of the surname Selwyn.

Early bearers: given names: Seleuuius, 1086 in Domesday Book (Wilts).

urnames: Paganus filius Selewin’, 1203 in Pipe Rolls (Beds); Roger Selewyne, 1216–72 in Ancient Deeds ii (Middx); John Selewine, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Kempsford, Gloucs); Robert de [sic] Selwyne, 1296, Juliana Selewyne, 1332 in Subsidy Rolls (Donnington, Sussex); Wyllyam Selwyn, 1557 in IGI (Friston, Sussex); Jasper Selwyn, 1608 in IGI (Matson, Gloucs).

2 Norman, English: relationship name, perhaps from the Middle English and Old French personal name Selvein, Silvein (Latin Silvanus), with vocalization of /v/ to /w/, possibly through influence of the name in (1). Some Middle English forms of the name, especially those beginning in Selv-, are shared with those of Salvin, and there may have been confusion of the two surnames, particularly in Lincs and Yorks. Silvein may have survived to the present day as Silvain and Silvey, but more evidence is needed.

Further information: In Anglo-Norman usage both Selvein and Silvester were sometimes latinized as Salvagi ‘wild, savage’; see Domesday Descendants, p. 1112, and compare Silvester and Savage. Whether the vernacular surnames were ever interchangeable is a question for further research.

Early bearers: given names: Siluein de Torp, 1170 in Pipe Rolls (Warwicks).

urnames: Osbert Seluein, 1162 in Pipe Rolls (Yorks); Robertus Siluein, 1127–34, Robertus Seluenus about 1140 in Saint Benet of Holme Register (Norfolk); Henry Siluain 1154–89 in Gilbertine Charters (Lincs); Robert Seluan, 1185 in Templars Records (Lincs); Ricardus filius Seluein, 1195 in Feet of Fines (Northants); Robert Selvein, 1242 in Book of Fees (Marchinton, Staffs); Robert Selveyn, 1244, Robert Selweyn, 1271 in Assize Rolls (Staffs); John Sylveyn, 1328 in Patent Rolls (Somerset); Roger Silveyn, 1381 in Patent Rolls (Somerset); Editha Sulfayn, 1381 in Poll Tax (Dorset); Roger Sylveyn, 1386 in Patent Rolls (Somerset); William Sylveyn, 1414 in Patent Rolls (Dorset).

In medieval London and probably in other major ecclesiastical centres, setter(e) denoted a maker of opus anglicanum, a kind of luxurious embroidery in which precious stones and silver and gold threads were ‘set’ or sewn onto ceremonial clothing (Ekwall, ELSR, pp. 357–8).

Further information: Reaney has it as a variant of Satterthwaite, with confusion of the unstressed final element, and that view might be supported by the existence of Maylin Satterthwaite, 1642 in IGI (Clerkenwell, Middx). There is a partly similar Kent name, now extinct, whose origin is also obscure: Robert Settatre, 1673 in IGI (Margate, Kent); Johanna Settertree, 1675 in IGI (Saint Nicholas at Wade, Kent); Margaret Setatree, 1724 in IGI (Chilham, Kent); Robert Setterfree [for -tree], 1791, Elizabeth Settetree, 1819 in IGI (Westwell, Kent). This may be further evidence for the local alteration of the same unfamiliar northern name.

- Main GB location 1881: Devon

English: occupational name from Middle English shapster, shipster 'seamstress, dressmaker', the feminine form of Shaper. The medial -s- may have vanished through association of the name with the word tor, or through dissimilation of fricatives.

Further information: it is possible that the name of the village of Sheepstor (Devon) has influenced the surname of some late bearers of the Shipster variant, but the variant with -i- arises, even in Devon, far too early for this to be the prime source of the name because early forms of the place-name are quite different from those of the surname (Place-Names of Devon, pp. 238–9; Schepystorr, 1574, is the first spelling with -p-).

Early bearers: Matilda Shapistre, 1275 in Hundred Rolls (Suffolk); Alice La Seppestre, 1296 in Subsidy Rolls (Sussex); Sarra le Shapester, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Worcs); Margery Scheppestere, 1377 in Poll Tax (Dartmouth, Devon); John Shepster, 1379 in Colchester Court Rolls; Joanna Shapter, 1545 in IGI (Ugborough, Devon); Agnes Shapter, 1546, Richard Shapster, 1557, Mary Shaptor, 1560 in IGI (Braunton, Devon); Agnes Shapster, 1575, John Shopster, 1581 in IGI (Exeter, Devon); Henrye Shopte, 1605 in IGI (Bridford, Devon).

- Chinese: Cantonese form of the Chinese surname 石 (Shi or Shih in Mandarin romanization, Sek in Cantonese romanization), meaning ‘stone’ in Chinese: (i) from the first element of the personal name Shi Que (石碯), a highly esteemed official in the state of Wei during the Spring and Autumn period (770–476 BC). (ii) from one of the ‘Nine Sogdian Surnames’, also known as ‘nine surnames of Zhaowu’, because their ancestors came from Zhaowu, an ancient city in present-day Gansu province in NW China. During the Sui and Tang dynasties (AD 581–987) there were nine Sogdian states in Central Asia, one of which was called Shi (石) in Chinese. Between AD 649 and 655, these states submitted to the emperor Tang Gao Zong of the Tang Dynasty. The natives and their descendants from the state of Shi (石) in China acquired the surname Shi (石). (iii) from the personal name Zi Shi (子石), a style name of a prince of the state of Zheng and another prince of the state of Song during the Spring and Autumn period (770–476 BC). (iv) from the personal name Bo Shi (伯石), the style name of an official in the state of Jin during the Spring and Autumn period (770–476 BC). (v) adopted as a surname by the Wu Shi Lan (烏石蘭) family from the Xianbei ethnic group in N China during the Northern Wei dynasty (AD 386–534). (vi) adopted in place of several other surnames, including Zhang (張), Ran (冉), and Lou (婁).

English: nickname for someone with a limp or a shambling gait, from Middle English **shailard*, a side form of shailere 'one who limps or shambles', with the pejorative suffix -ard. Only Shailard has been found as medieval surname, which has subsequently developed to or merged with Shailer. Compare Shale.

Further information: A possible alternative origin is Old French eschaillier, 'oyster seller', but there is no evidence for this in Middle English, although the source verb eschaillier 'to take the husk or shell off (something)', 'to shell oysters', is paralleled in Middle English shalen. This might have given rise to a noun shaler, perhaps meaning 'thresher' or 'oyster seller', but it is not attested.

However, **Scim-* or **Scem-* is otherwise unknown as a first element in Old English personal names and is apparently attested only in the rare Continental Germanic name Scimo, a name recorded uniquely in the confraternity book of Saint Gallen, Switzerland (Morlet, Noms de Personne 1, p. 196).

English: nickname, occupational name for a goldsmith, from Middle English sheren 'to cut' + gold 'gold'; sheren could mean 'to cut or fashion (a ring from gold)'.

Further information: Reaney's derivation from an unrecorded personal name, Middle English **Shergot*, Old English **Scīrgōd* can be put aside. The only evidence for this name is in Essex: Reginaldus Schergoth, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Great Waltham, Essex); William Shergot, 1377 in Assize Rolls (Essex); Benedictus Schergot, 1381 in Poll Tax (Great Waltham, Essex); Jone Shurgood, 1568 in IGI (Roxwell, Essex). It seems to have died out and there is no evidence to connect it with Shergold, which is primarily a Wilts surname.

1 English: locative name from any of several places named with Old English scīr + wudu ‘clear, perhaps sparsely-grown wood’. The WR Yorks name usually refers to Sherwood (Hall) in Eggborough (WR Yorks), but some examples could alternatively derive from Sherwood (House) in Stainforth (WR Yorks) or from the Notts forest name in (2). The Devon name is from Sherwood (Green) in Yarnscombe (Devon). These are well evidenced as medieval place-names, and there may be similar, but unrecorded places that could account for the medieval surname in other counties such as ER Yorks, Norfolk, Oxon, and Sussex. Sherwood occurs in minor place-names in Berks, Hants, Herts, Kent, NR Yorks, Sussex, and Wilts, but they are recorded only in modern times and in many cases will have been named from the surname or perhaps in imitation of (2).

- Current frequencies: GB 1003, Ireland 0
- Main GB location 1881: WR Yorks

English: nickname perhaps from an unrecorded Middle English **shelli*, **shilli* ‘shelly, scaly’ + to ‘toe’, an expression suggesting severe athlete’s foot. A document of about 1400 refers to ‘schellis, þat comþ of brennyng þat is in þe skyn’ ‘shells (scales) that come from a burning in the skin’. The 1327 example of the surname would then represent a depalatalized pronunciation of Sheli- as Seli-. Most dictionaries explain the name as ‘happy toe’, containing Middle English seli, sili ‘blessed, fortunate, happy’, but the phrase makes an odd nickname, and forms with Silli- may be partly the result of confusing Shilli- with the common word sili, silly.

Further information: the expression forming this name must be the source of the modern shelly toe, a footrot-like disease of sheep (not in OED), characterized by ‘[o]uter layers of horn separat[ing] on the outside of the toe’. Perhaps this sense is old enough, though the term is unrecorded, to be the actual source of the name, being used to describe similar conditions in animals and humans or to make a joking comparison.

1 Chinese: Hokkien or Taiwanese romanization of the Chinese surname 辛 (Xin in Mandarin pinyin, San in Cantonese romanization), meaning 'hot and spicy' or 'suffering' in Chinese: (i) from the place-name Shen (莘), the name of a fief (originally located in Heyang in Shaanxi province, later moved to Chenliu in Henan province during the Shang dynasty (1600–1046 BC)), granted to descendants of Qi, the second king of the Xia dynasty (2070–1600 BC). When the name of the fiefdom was adopted as a surname, the written form of the Chinese character was simplified to 辛, which was pronounced the same as 莘 in ancient Chinese. (ii) said to be traced back to Gao Xin Shi (高辛氏), the title of the legendary king Di Ku, who lived prior to the Xia dynasty (2070–1600 BC).

2 Chinese: Hokkien or Taiwanese romanization of the Chinese surname 申, see Shen (1).

3 Chinese: non-standard romanization of the Chinese surname 邢, see Hing (2).

4 Korean: (신; Chinese character: 申) There are three Chinese characters for the Shin surname, but two are rather rare and are not treated here. The Shin (申) family is divided into two clans. The Pyöngsan Shin family is descended from Sam Nüng-san (삼 산삼), who assisted the founding king of the Koryö Kingdom in the early tenth century. To honour him, the king bestowed a new name on him: Shin Sung-kyöm (申崇謙). According to legend, one day while he was out hunting with the king, three wild geese flew out of some bushes in front of them. The king challenged his companions to shoot one of them; Shin Sung-kyöm said he would hit the third goose on the left wing. He successfully did this and in recognition of his marksmanship the king bestowed upon him a tract of land in Pyöngsan County of Hwanghae Province. Shin Sung-kyöm was later killed in battle while protecting the king. The other clan, the Koryöng Shin clan, is descended from Shin Söng-yong (申成用), a Koryö official whose descendants claimed Koryöng County in Kyöngsang North Province as their clan seat.

English: nickname from Middle English **shokere*, Old English scēcere 'robber'.
Further information: Reaney's explanation of the name as occupational, from Middle English shokken 'to heap up, arrange sheaves in a shock' is doubtful, partly because the occupation was lowly and seasonal and therefore an unlikely one for someone as well off as Sibilla Shokere of West Grinstead (or her husband); she was assessed for taxation in 1327 at the relatively high sum of 3s 6d. Furthermore the vowel of shokken is short, whereas the vowel of Shoker and Choker seems to be long.

Variants: Shoobridge, Shewbridge

- Current frequencies: GB 531, Ireland 1

English: nickname, apparently altered from early Modern English shew-bread 'the twelve loaves that were placed every Sabbath "before the Lord" on a table beside the altar of incense, and at the end of the week were eaten by the priests alone' (OED), first recorded in Tyndale's Bible translation (1530). The earliest name-form may be genuine, but a reinterpretation sparked by the contemporary interest in Bible-translation; it may stand as an intermediate form between the modern name and an original unlocated place-name in SE England, perhaps Shoebury (Essex). Compare Thomas Shewbery, 1571 in IGI (Woodchurch, Kent), or possibly the recurring minor place-name Shovelbrede 'shovel's breadth' as in Shulbrede (Sussex), but both these possible origins offer phonological difficulties.

- Main GB location 1881: Kent, Surrey, and Middx; also Berks and Oxon

1 English: locative name for someone who lived by a detached or cut-off piece of land known in Middle English as a sherte, shirte, or shurte (Old English **scerte*, **scierte*, **scyrte*). The addition of + -er to a topographical term to form an agent noun is typical of Surrey, Kent, Sussex, and Hants, and may also have occurred in Berks and Wilts. The name is synonymous with atte Scherte and atte Schurte; see Short and Shortman.

Further information: Wilson's derivation in Reaney and Wilson from Middle English shortere 'the smaller' can be safely disregarded.

Shorter may have become confused with Shotter; according to McKinley, William Shottere, a 15th-century Sussex cleric, is also referred to as William Shorter, but this could be the result of a scribal or transcriptional error.

Early bearers: Roger le Shorter, 1306 in Assize Rolls (Wilts); Thomas Schortar', 1379 in Poll Tax (Malmesbury borough, Wilts); Johannes Schertere, 1379 in Poll Tax (West Harting, Sussex); Henricus Schertere, 1379 in Poll Tax (Rogate, Sussex); Willelmo Schorture, 1381 in Poll Tax (Welford, Berks); Johanne Schurter', Ricardo Scherter', Willelmo Schurter', 1381 in Poll Tax (Chiddingfold, Surrey); John Shorter (tailor), 1386–1486 in Chancery Proceedings; Robert Shorter, 1481 in Close Rolls (Surrey); Nycholas Shorter, 1583 in Muster Rolls (Surrey); Jane Shorter, 1615 in PROB 11 (London); William Shorter, 1640 in PROB 11 (Reading, Berks).

2 English: in Staffs the surname appears to be a reduced form of Shorters, a variant of Shorthouse.

1 English: occupational name from Middle English sifocere, sivekere, seuker 'sieve maker' or 'one who sieves (flour)', a derivative either of Middle English **sifoc* 'sieve' + -ere or of Middle English siven 'to pass through a sieve' + the rare suffix -kere. Roger Sewker, 1409 in Nottingham Borough Court Rolls, possessed a pair of wooden sieves. The sequence /seu:/ developed to /sju:/, /su:/, /ʃu:/, and /ʃju:/ in early Modern English, so Sewker may also appear as Suker, Sh(o)uker, and Shewker. With voicing of the intervocalic /k/ as /g/, as in the 1275 Worcs example and the 1308 Staffs example, the name would also sometimes develop to Sugar.

Further information: Spellings with -n- in Assize Rolls, Hundred Rolls, Patent Rolls, Poll Tax, and Subsidy Rolls have been silently altered to -u-, i.e. /v/.

English: occupational name probably from an unrecorded Middle English **scuteler*, **shuteler*, **shiteler* ‘one who makes or uses a weaver’s shuttle’, a derivative of Old English scutel, scytel ‘dart’. Compare Thom. Schetilmaker, 1361 in Thuresson, and Willelmus Schitelmaker, 1377 in Poll Tax (Kingston upon Hull, ER Yorks).

Further information: The Middle English forms cited here could alternatively represent Middle English scuteler ‘dish-maker’, also ‘one in charge of a scullery, a scullion’; compare Anglo-Latin scutellarius ‘scullion’ and see Thuresson, p. 125.

However, this would not regularly have become Shutler or Shittler.

1 English: locative name from Sibson (Leics), also known as Sibstone, recorded as Sibetesdone, 1086 in Domesday Book, and in Middle English as Sibesdon and Sibeston. There is another Sibson (Sibestune, 1086 in Domesday Book, Hunts), but the distribution of the post-medieval surname points to the Leics place-name. The shift from -esdon and -eston to -son in the place-names is first recorded in the 16th century. Influence from (and confusion with) Middle English Sibbeson 'Sibyl's son' seems likely, and some examples of the post-medieval Leics surname may alternatively derive from the relationship name. See (2) below.

Early bearers: Joh. de Sibesdon, 1311, Joh. de Sibbesdon, 1318 in Leicester Borough Records; Johannes Sibbesdon', 1377 in Poll Tax (Birstall, Leics); Agn' Sibbisdon', 1379 in Poll Tax (Dadlington, Leics); Marget Sibson, 1565, Thomas Sibson, 1676, Charles Sibson, 1837 in IGI (Birstall, Leics); Mary Sibson, 1685; Joseph Sybson, 1700 in IGI (Leicester, Leics).

2 English: relationship name from Middle English Sibb, a pet form of the female personal name Sibyl, + -son. Compare Sibble, Sibley, and Sibbs.

Early bearers: William Sibbison, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Cambs); John son of Sibbe, 1297, perhaps identical with John Sibson, 1314, John Sibbeson, 1316 in Wakefield Court Rolls (WR Yorks); Willelmus Sibbeson', 1377 in Poll Tax (Hovingham, NR Yorks); Willelmus Sibbesson', 1379 in Poll Tax (Witton, Norfolk); Johannes Sibson', 1379 in Poll Tax (South Elmsall, WR Yorks); Ricardus Sybson', 1379 in Poll Tax (Burton in Lonsdale, WR Yorks); Willelmus Sibson, 1379 in Poll Tax (Lonsdale wapentake, Lincs); Ricardo Sibbesone, 1379 in Poll Tax (Wymeswold, Leics); Bartholomeus Sibson', 1381 in Poll Tax (Whaplode, Lincs); Nicholas Sybson, 1573 in IGI (Rotherham, WR Yorks); Tho. 1 English: locative name presumably from either Siddal in Middleton (Lancs), first recorded as Sydall in 1548, or from Siddal in Southowram (WR Yorks), recorded as Sydale in 1483. The only doubt, as Redmonds points out, is that the surname is recorded earlier than either of the places; in fact the 1379 Blackburn example, if it refers to Siddal in Middleton, points to a different place-name etymology than the one supposed by Ekwall.

Early bearers: Johanne de Sedehill, 1379 in Poll Tax (Blackburn, Lancs); Ricardus de Sedale, 1379 in Poll Tax (Bashall Eaves, WR Yorks); Alexander Siddall, 1573 in IGI (Leeds, WR Yorks); Rychard Syddall, 1575, Thomas Syddalle, 1577 in IGI (Manchester, Lancs); Elisabeth Syddell, 1589 in IGI (Saint Martin cum Gregory, York); Henrye Syddal, 1596 in IGI (Leeds, WR Yorks); Anthony Siddle, 1601 in IGI (Kirk Deighton, WR Yorks); Edmund Siddell, 1619 in IGI (Wardleworth, Lancs); Margareta Sidell, 1628 in IGI (Waddington, WR Yorks); Edward Siddel, 1667 in IGI (Radcliffe, Lancs); William Siddall, 1672 in Hearth Tax (Yorks).

- Main GB location 1881: Staffs and Derbys

English: locative name from The Siddalls in Sutton in Ashfield (Notts), recorded as Sydehalgh in 1316, Syddalles in 1530, or from Sidneys Farm in Stretton (Derbys), recorded as Sydenhale in the 13th century, or possibly from The Sidnalls in Tardebigge (Worcs), recorded as Sidenhale in about 1245. The final -s was added to the place-names or the surnames in post-medieval times. Seedhouse is probably an altered form of Sidalls by folk etymology. Compare the Yorks and Lancs name Siddall.

Early bearers: Rog' de Sidenhale, late 12th cent. in Danelaw Documents (Notts); Henry Syddall, 1563 in IGI (Burton upon Trent, Staffs); George Siddale, 1654 in IGI (Church Broughton, Derbys); Adam Syddale, 1708 in IGI (Bakewell, Derbys); Elizebeth Seedhouse, 1709 in IGI (Bingham, Notts); Nathaniel Seedhouse, 1729 in IGI (South Wingfield, Derbys); John Siddall, 1776 in IGI (Mansfield, Notts); John Siddels, 1777 in IGI (Burton upon Trent, Staffs); Grace Syddle, 1790 in IGI (Eyam, Derbys); Elizabeth Seedhouse, 1790 in IGI (Walsall, Staffs); Joseph Siddalls, 1815 in IGI (Burton upon Trent, Staffs); Thomas Seedhorse, 1863 in IGI (Bilston, Staffs).

The poet Sir Philip Sidney (1554–86) was a descendant, born at Penshurst. The Australian city of Sydney was named in 1788 after the politician Thomas Townshend, First Viscount Sydney (1733–1800).

Further information: Derivation from the Middle English personal name Silkin, a pet form of Sil (see Sill), is unlikely as there is no evidence of any Middle English surname based on this personal name, such as Johannes Selkyn, 1379 in Poll Tax (Kent), surviving into the modern period.

- Further information: It has been suggested that significant scribal variants with initial L- are often met. However, alleged variants in P- are more likely to be a nickname from Middle English **pil-aveine* 'pill-oats' (Old French aveine 'oats'), for which compare pil-corn, if it is not a form of Bullivant as suggested by Reaney.

  - GB frequency 1881: 48
  - Main GB location 1881: IoW
- English: variant of Selsby, itself a form of Silsby. The existence of William Selsbey, 1700, John Selsby, 1702 in IGI (Brook, IoW), and Frances Silsbey, 1756 in IGI (Calbourne, IoW), along with the the early bearer examples below, suggests that the name was altered under the influence of Salisbury. There is no support in the place-name record for the idea that it may be a form of Salisbury itself.
- Further information: This influence, or a not dissimilar one, may have occurred more than once, because we find Francis Selsbery, 1723 in IGI (Tatham, Lancs), not far from one of the early-modern heartlands of Selsby, for which compare Sarah Selsbie, 1619, Robt Selsby, 1629 in IGI (Chester, Cheshire).

English: locative name from one or more places named with Middle English silver ‘silver’ (Old English seolfor) + wode ‘wood’ (Old English wudu). The colour presumably refers to birch trees. One source of the surname appears to be a lost place in Greasley (Notts), on the edge of Sherwood Forest. Daude de Siluerwode, who was a tenant of Lenton Priory in Siluerwode in 1298, appears to be the same man as Radulphus de Siluerwode, a tenant of the priory in Neuthorp (in Greasley) in the previous year. Another source may be Silver Wood in Ravenfield (WR Yorks), first recorded in 1483 in the court rolls of Conisbrough, and there may have been another in the Craven area of WR Yorks. The surname was sometimes contracted to Silwood and Selwood.

English: relationship name from the common Middle English personal name Simon. It mostly represents the Biblical New Testament name Simon (Greek Simōn, from simos 'snub-nosed') and as such it often appears as Simond with an excrescent -d. This name absorbed Old Scandinavian Sigmund(r), which was borrowed into late Old English, and the cognate Continental Germanic Sigmund, which was merged with the Old Scandinavian name in Norman usage and brought to England after the Conquest. For pet forms of Simon see Sim, Simcock, Simpkin, and Simmonite.

Further information: The Biblical and Scandinavian names were confused very early. Simon, also named as Simundus, 1086 in Domesday Book (Worcs), is elsewhere called 'Simund quidam, genere Danus' (Feilitzen). His name was thus Old Scandinavian Sigmund(r), and some examples of Simon in 12th-century Norfolk and Lincs were probably Scandinavian and contributed to the surname. Others may have been introduced from Normandy. After the Conquest, in England, Simund was a common form of Biblical Simon. Wycliffe uses Symound for the disciple Simon Peter. Simon de Montfort is called Simond by Robert of Gloucester. Adam Cimond, 1292 in Subsidy Rolls (London), is identical with Adam Simon, 1292 in London Letter Books A, and with Adam son of Simon, 1290 in Patent Rolls.

(ii) from the name of Sheng Bao (盛苞), an official in the Eastern Han dynasty (AD 25–220), whose original surname was Shi (贛). They survive as Sinigar, Siniger, and Sinniger in Census 1881 but may also have been absorbed by Singer. It is equally possible, however, that Sinige(ar) is a variant of Singer (see (1) above) with an intrusive -i-. Compare James Singer, 1739 in IGI (Dursley, Gloucs); Sarah Singer, 1720, Joseph Singer, 1853 in IGI (Gloucester, Gloucs); Sarah Singer, 1743, Thomas Singer, 1849 in IGI (Birmingham, Warwicks).

English: Sinker, Sinkah, and Sinkoe represent local pronunciations of Simcoe, a variant of Simcock. For the change of -m- to -n- see Sincock, Sinkinson.

Further information: The explanation in Reaney and Wilson 'one who engraves figures or designs on dies' has no evidential basis. Cited early forms such as le Synoker (1260), le Synekere (1314), and le Syneker (1327) are unlikely to derive from Middle English signe 'sign, seal, imprint', which seems to be Wilson's thinking. They are mistranscriptions of Syuoeker and Syueker(e), see Shuker. Wilson's reference to Thomas Synkman, 1379 in Poll Tax (Doncaster, WR Yorks), is better explained as a derivative of Middle English sink 'water basin, sump, cesspit', or more likely Middle English cinck, sink 'girdle, lace'.

Early bearers: Thoms. Simcock, 1616, Symon Sinkoe, 1687 in IGI (Frodsham, Cheshire); Jhan Sinkho, 1692 in IGI (Brampton, Cumb); Anthonie Simcock, 1568, Elizabeth Simcove, 1636, James Sinkah, 1750, James Sinkcock, 1759 in IGI (Chester, Cheshire); James Sinker, 1744 in IGI (Doddleston, Cheshire).
