1 English: relationship name from the Middle English male personal name Noel (Old French Noël). The name derives from Old French noël 'Christmas', and may have been given, like the English Christmas and Midwinter, to one born at that festival. Some of the following post-medieval bearers may alternatively belong with (2).

Further information: The place-name Newells in Nuthurst (Sussex) derives from the family name of Robert Noel, 1230, and Robert Nouwel, 1305 in Feet of Fines.

Early bearers: given names: Noel, 1130 in Pipe Rolls (London); Noel, 1200 in Curia Regis Rolls (Northants).

References: Place-Names of Sussex, p. 232.

2 English: sometimes a post-medieval variant of Knowle and Knoll, see Knowles. Compare Thomas Nowell, 1558 in IGI (Rye, Sussex) with Elizabeth Knoll, 1611 in IGI (Rye, Sussex); Anne Knowles, 1580 in IGI (Dronfield, Derbys) with William Nowill, 1658 in IGI (Dronfield, Derbys); and Edward Nolles, 1593 in IGI (Little Plumstead, Norfolk) with Rebecca Knolles, 1619 in IGI (Little Plumstead, Norfolk). The loss of /k/ before /n/ is known in everyday speech by the 17th century and may have been earlier. Noel in (1) and Knowle were probably confused in counties like Sussex and Lancs where both names occurred.

1 English: nickname from Middle English northman, norman 'northerner; Scandinavian, especially a Norwegian' (Old English norðmann). Where there is no definite article, the bearers given below may belong to (2), and where there is no -th-, -b-, or -ð- they may belong to (3).

Further information: Before 1066, Scandinavian settlers in England were already fairly readily absorbed, and Northman and Norman came to be used as bynames and later as personal names even among the English inhabitants. The term gained a new use from 1066, when England was invaded from Normandy by Normans who were indeed of Scandinavian origin but who by the 11th century had become French-speaking and integrated with the local population. After seizing the English crown in 1066, they rapidly spread through Scotland, Wales, and Ireland.

Because of the royal and aristocratic status of the Normans in Britain and Ireland, the term acquired a new prestige during this period, which it has never lost. In Scotland, Norman has been used as an equivalent of the Gaelic given name Tormod.

Early bearers: Hugo Norman, 1171 in Pipe Rolls (Wilts); William Norman, 1185 in Templars Records (Herts); Master Simon le Norman, 1236, Richard le Norman, king's serjeant, 1267 in Patent Rolls; Robert Norþman, 1279 in Hundred Rolls (Oxon); John Northman, 1299 in Patent Rolls (Somerset); William Northeman, 1301 in Subsidy Rolls (Yorks); John Norman, 1360 in Feet of

Nulty

1 Norman, English, Irish: locative name from any of various places in northern France, such as Nogent-le-Sec and Nogent-sur-Eure (both Eure), Nogent-le-Phaye, Nogent-le-Roi, and Nogent-le-Rotrou (all Eure-et-Loir), Nogent-l'Abbesse (Marne), Nogent-l'Artaud (Aisne), and in particular Nogent-sur-Oise (Oise), all of which are named with Latin Novientum, apparently an altered form of a Gaulish name meaning 'new settlement'.

Further information: The Anglo-Norman family of this name are descended from Fulke de Bellesme, lord of Nogent-le-Rotrou, who was granted lands around Winchester, Hants, after the Conquest. Fulke's great-grandson Hugh de Nugent (died 1213) went to Ireland with Hugh de Lacy in the late 12th century and was granted lands in Bracklyn, Westmeath. The family adopted the Gaelic name Uinnseadún or Uinsheadun, a reference to their original seat at Winchester, Hants, an informal name for which was and is Winton (Hanks and Hodges, DAFN).

Early bearers: England: Philip de Nugent, 1203 in Pleas (Shrops); Philip Nogent, 13th cent. in Ronton Chartulary (Staffs); Richard de Nugent, 1293 in Assize Rolls (Staffs); John Nogent, 1340 in Coroners' Rolls (London); Richard Nugent, 1576 in IGI (Horsham, Sussex); Edmund Nugent, 1583 in IGI (Manchester, Lancs); Susan Newgent, 1629 in IGI (Stepney, Middx).

Ireland: James Nugent, son of baron of Delvin, 1458 in AU (Westmeath); Christopher son of James son of Richard Nugent, baron of Delvin, 1478 in AU (Westmeath); Richard Newgent, knight, Baron of Delwyn, 1526 in Fiants Henry §14 (Multifernan); Edward son of Gerald Nugent, knight, 1560 in Fiants Elizabeth §210 (Balynebrathnaghe, Westmeath); Christopher son of Richard Nugent, baron of Delvin, 1566 in Fiants Elizabeth §838 (Westmeath).

2 Irish: in Ireland, this is generally the Norman name, but it was also adopted for Mag Uinseanáin (formerly anglicized as McGunshenan, a variant of Gilseanán), on the grounds of a fancied resemblance between Uinseanán and Uinnseadún.

- Main GB location 1881: NE Lincs

English: relationship name perhaps a patronymic from a Scandinavian male personal name **Nundi*, becoming Middle English Nundy and Nunde. The variations in the surname forms between Nundy and Mundy, Nunde and Munde, suggest two possibilities. **Nundi* may be a pet form of Old Scandinavian **Anundi*, a weakly declined variant of Anund(r), a name common in eastern Scandinavia and recorded once in England in a 12th-century Yorks charter (Fellows Jensen, Scand. Personal Names, p. 11), and of uncertain origin. The phonetic dissimilation of N- to M- may have been influenced by association with Old Scandinavian Mundi, a pet form of personal names ending in -mund(i). Alternatively **Nundi* could itself be an altered form of Mundi, with initial m assimilated to the following n. See Mundy. The modern surname is found principally in north-east Lincs. Early bearers: Henr' Nunde de Sutton, 1287 in Forest Pleas (Sutton in Ashfield, Notts); John, Roger Nunde of Sutton in Ashfield, 1291–2, identical with John, Roger Munde, 1297 in Mansfield Rentals (Notts); Henry Nundy of Sutton in Ashfield, 1388, 1403 in Inquisitiones post Mortem (Notts); John Nundy, 1478, probably identical with John Mundy, 1454 in Inquisitiones post Mortem (Notts); John Nundy, 1661 in IGI (Brinkhill, Lincs); Gulielmus Nundy, 1663 in IGI (Somersby, Lincs).

English: locative name from Nurton (Staffs), which is recorded as Uverton in 1280, Nurton in Norbury (Shrops), or Nurton Court in Middleton on the Hill (Herefs). The Staffs and Shrops place-names appear to derive from Old English ofer 'hill, ridge; bank, river bank' + tūn 'farmstead, settlement', with the N-due to misdivision of Middle English atten Overton. No early forms are available for the Herefs place-name, and so no reliable judgement can be made on its etymology.

Further information: The name may not always be distinguishable from Norton; Nurton (Staffs) turns up in the 16th century as Norton. Since the original form of the Shrops place-name was Overton, and the Staffs place-name was recorded as Uverton in 1280, some W Midland Nurtons may ultimately be relatable to Overton.

1 Norman, English, Irish: relationship name from the Old Norman French personal name Ode, Odde, Odes, Otto, Otes, Otton, Continental Germanic Audo, Odo, Oddo, Otto, derived from **aud-* 'wealth, prosperity'. See also Oton; the variant medieval forms in -on represent the oblique case form in Old French and were interchangeable with forms such as Ode and Ote. In post-medieval examples the -s may alternatively be an excremental addition to Ode or Ote, as perhaps in the Plympton (Devon) family name. Although the personal name died out in most parts of England during the 13th century, it survived into post-medieval times in a few counties, including Lancs and Cornwall. The Cornwall and Devon form Oda (1327, 1332) is a dialect spelling of Ode.

Early bearers: given names: Ode, Odo, Otho, 1086 in Domesday Book; Odo, 1155–85, 1215–45, Otto, 1285–1315 in Durham Liber Vitae; Odd atte Flete, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Sussex).

surnames, E England: Radulfus filius Ode, about 1160 in Danelaw Documents (Lincs); Asketinus filius Od, 1163 in Danelaw Documents (Lincs); Willelmus filius Ote (Otte), 1177 in Pipe Rolls (Essex); William Ode, 1213 in Curia Regis Rolls (Suffolk); Cristiana Odes, 1275 in Hundred Rolls (Northants); Andrew Otes, 1275 in Hundred Rolls (Norfolk); Johannes Ode, 1377 in Poll Tax (Wrabness, Essex); Johannes Ode, 1379 in Poll Tax (North Walsham, Norfolk); Ellen Oates, 1626 in IGI (Wiggenhall Saint Mary the Virgin, Norfolk).

The places are named with Old English hām 'village, homestead' and an uncertain initial element.

The place-name probably means 'oat clearing', from Old English āte 'oat' + lēah 'open woodland', but some forms suggest that the initial element is an Old English personal name **Otta* and that the final element is Old English halh 'nook, corner of land'.

1 Norman, English, Scottish: nickname from Old French olifard or olifant, of uncertain meaning. Reaney suggests it might be a derivative of Old French olif 'olive' + the pejorative suffix -ard, 'a derisive nickname for one who preferred an olive branch to more martial weapons'; it may have denoted a man twisted like an olive tree. The variant Olifant may have resulted from the substitution in Old Norman French of the sequence l-r by l-n, leading to a false association with Old French olifant 'elephant'. This heraldic beast appears in the Scottish family's coat of arms. Branches of the Anglo-Norman family owned lands in both England and Scotland. Hugo Olifard was a tenant of Peterborough Abbey about 1123–9 and his son William answered for his land at Lilford (Northants) in 1129–30. David Olifard or Holifard, godson of David I (king of Scotland and earl of Huntingdon), lost his lands at Sawtry (Hunts) after he helped the king escape from the Rout of Winchester in 1141, but he was compensated in 1157 by Malcolm IV of Scotland, who gave him the lordship of Bothwell (Lanarks). The Olifards also acquired lands in Roxburghs. The surname is now chiefly Scottish. Further information: The variation between Olifard and Olifant originated in Normandy. An Osbernus Olifardus occurs in a Norman charter of 1046–8 of William the Bastard (no. 106 in Fauroux) who is identical with Osbernus Olifantus in a charter of 1082–7 of William, now 'prince de Normandie' (no. 234 in Fauroux).

Early bearers: England: Robert Oliphard, about 1148 in Stenton, Feudalism (Herefs); John Olifard, 1179 in Pipe Rolls (Cambs); Hugh Olifard, 1208 in Pipe Rolls (Worcs); William Olivant, 1572 in Lancs Wills (Lancs); John Oliphant, 1575 in IGI (Dalston, Cumb); Andrew Olyvant, 1596 in IGI (Chapel Mumby, Lincs); Jane Olivant, 1597 in IGI (Greatham, Durham); Dorothy Olivant, 1646, Ann Olifint, 1761 in IGI (Durham, Durham); Frances Oliphant, 1675, Elizabeth Ollivant, 1692 in IGI (Hesket, Cumb); Samuell Olephant, 1679, John Olevant, 1722 in IGI (Little Ouseburn, WR Yorks); George Olephant, 1716 in IGI (Bolton le Sands, Lancs); George Olivant, 1768 in IGI (Manchester, Lancs).

English, Scottish: (i) relationship name from the Old French personal name Oliver (modern French Olivier). This became common largely through the influence of the immensely popular narrative poem Chanson de Roland, in which the warrior Oliver is the wise best friend of the doomed hero Roland. The two men were peers at the court of Charlemagne, and the name is probably of Germanic origin. Old Scandinavian Ólaf and Continental Germanic Alfihar have been suggested as sources, but both are difficult to explain phonetically, especially the latter. See also Boliver. (ii) Alternatively, the source may be the common French word olivier denoting the economically important olive tree.

Ommanney

- Main GB location 1881: London; ER Yorks
- 1 Norman, English: relationship name, perhaps from the Old French personal name Omer (Continental Germanic Audmar, from **aud-* ‘riches’ + **mari-* ‘famous’). It might explain the Kent name, which consistently begins in O- not Ho-, but there is currently no medieval evidence in England for either the given name or the surname. A Huguenot origin is feasible but has not been substantiated.
- Early bearers: Laurence Omer, 1486 in Canterbury Wills (Probate) (Ash next Sandwich, Kent); Tryphena Omar, 1594, John Omer, 1732, 1845 in IGI (Sandwich, Kent); Johis. - 2 English: de-aspirated variant of Homer, a name which in the W Midlands usually represents a pronunciation of Holmer.
- Early bearers: Thoma Omer, 1615 in IGI (Sandbach, Cheshire); Charlotte Omer, 1831, John Homer, 1850 in IGI (Drypool, ER Yorks); Joseph Homer, 1843, Robert Omar, 1848 in IGI (Chesterfield, Derbys).

Ommanney

- Current frequencies: GB 30, Ireland 0
  - GB frequency 1881: 57
  - Main GB location 1881: IoW; Surrey
- (i) if English, possibly a variant of Umney. (ii) if English, possibly a form of Romney. Compare Nathaniel Rumney, 1671 in IGI (Alverstoke, Hants); Peter Rumney, 1772, William Romney, 1819 in IGI (Portsea, Hants); but in Portsea perhaps Rumney, Romney are hypercorrect forms of Ommanney, which is recorded earlier.
- Further information: Peter Hughes has reported that the scroll recording the marriage of John Ommanney at Portsea (Hants) in 1673 (the first English record) carries an undated note implying that John had changed his name from Omedy or Omesby before the wedding. It has been regarded as a Huguenot name, also Irish, or both together, and it appears in Johannes Rietstap’s Armorial général (1861). There is a concentration of Ommanneys at Snedsted and Viborg (Denmark). All this makes it impossible at the moment to suggest a definite origin.
- Early bearers: John Ommanney, 1682, James Ommanney, 1705, Anthony Omaney, 1707 in IGI (Portsea, Hants).

- 1 Chinese: Cantonese form of the Chinese surname 安 (An in Mandarin pinyin), meaning ‘safe’ or ‘calm’ in Chinese: (i) borne by descendants of immigrants from an ancient state called An Xi (安息), also known as the Parthian Empire (located in present-day NE Iran). (ii) adopted as a surname by the An Chi (安遲) family from the Xianbei ethnic group in N China during the Northern Wei dynasty (AD 386–534). (iii) from one of the ‘Nine Sogdian Surnames’, also known as ‘nine surnames of Zhaowu’, because their ancestors came from Zhaowu, an ancient city in present-day Gansu province in NW China. During the Sui and Tang dynasties (AD 581–987) there were nine Sogdian states in Central Asia, one of which was called An (安) in Chinese. Between AD 649 and 655, these states submitted to the emperor Tang Gao Zong of the Tang Dynasty. (iv) possibly from An (安), the name of an ancient fief (located in Shanxi province).

Irish: from Ó Néill ‘descendant of Niall’, an Irish personal name possibly derived from néal ‘cloud’.

Further information: Bearers of this surname mostly claim descent from Niall Noígíallach (Niall of the Nine Hostages), a legendary king of Ireland who flourished in the 5th century. His descendants, the Ui Neill dynasty, dominated Ireland, on and off, from the 6th to the 10th century. The surname itself can be traced with some confidence to one of these descendants, namely Niall Glúndubh mac Aodha (died 919), High King of Ireland from 911 to 919, with a power base in Tyrone, Ulster. Vikings in Ireland adopted the name in the form Njal, taking it to Iceland and Norway, but whether they subsequently introduced it into northern England, where it might later have given rise to a surname, is an open question. It would have been absorbed by Neal.

Onley in Silverstone and Onneley in Madeley probably derive from Old English ān(a) ‘one, single, solitary’ + lēah ‘wood, woodland clearing’. Onley in Barby may have the same etymological origin, but alternatively may derive from the Old English personal name Ona + Old English lēah.

Opie

Variants: Oppy

- Current frequencies: GB 626, Ireland 3
- GB frequency 1881: 812
- Main GB location 1881: Cornwall; also Devon

English: relationship name from an unrecorded Middle English personal name **Opy* or **Oppy*, which is attested in 16th-century Cornwall as a pet form of Middle English Osbert (mostly a Norman name, an Old French borrowing of Continental Germanic Oseberht, from **ōs* ‘god’ + **berht* ‘bright’). Unvoicing of the -b- in the pet form is paralleled in the full form, as in Osperto Trewowen, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Saint Ives, Cornwall). There may have also been a voiced pet form **Oby* (see Hobby). Loss of -s- in Osbert may explain some examples of Hobart, though this name usually had a different origin. Middle English Osbert is mostly found in S England, the Midlands, and Essex, and it was especially favoured in W Cornwall, where its usual pet form was Hoskin. In England generally it was frequently confused with the less common personal name Osbern (see Osborne), so Osbert Engoffe, 1543 in Cornish Deeds (Saint Mawgan in Pyder), was probably the same man as Osborne Engoeff, 1525 in Subsidy Rolls (Philleigh, Cornwall). Opy was probably a pet form of Osbern, too, and O. J. Padel points out that in Buckland Brewer parish (Shebbear Hundred, north-west Devon), there was a man called Robert Osborne (and nobody surnamed Opy) in the Devon Subsidy Rolls for 1525, while in the 1544 subsidy there was a man called Robert Opey (and nobody surnamed Osborne). The two entries could refer to the same man, though it cannot be proved.

Further information: Although Opy is found as a surname as early as 1327, it may still have been a meaningful patronymic in the 16th century. In an indictment dated 1537 (Moulton’s Catalogue), Osbart John alias Oppy John of Spernecke Veer, husbandman, precedes Robert Oppy, husbandman, who may have been Osbert’s son.

Early bearers: given names: Osbart John alias Oppy John of Spernecke Voer, 1534 in Moulton’s Catalogue (Kea, Cornwall).

- 2 Norman, English: relationship name from the Middle English (Old French) female personal name Oreng, probably a variant of Orege (Latin Oregia) with Anglo-Norman French intrusive -n- before -g-, as in English passenger for Old French passager. Some of the following post-medieval surname examples may alternatively belong with (1).
- Early bearers: given names: Oregia, Oreng, 1100–30 in Durham Liber Vitae; Orengia, 1201, Horenga, 1204 in Curia Regis Rolls (Oxon); Orenga, 1226 in Feet of Fines (Essex); Oreng, 1247 in Assize Rolls (Beds).

References: Durham Liber Vitae 2, p. 206.

3 Norman, Huguenot: locative name, perhaps occasionally from a French place-name. One possibility is Orange, in Vauluse (S France), from which the noble House of Orange took its name, but a source in N France would be much more likely for William de Oreng, the Domesday Book tenant of Hugh de Bello Campo, whose family were from Manche (or possibly Calvados) in Normandy. Keats-Rohan (Domesday People, p. 477) suggests Origny-le-Butin or Origny-le-Roux in Orne, and there are other similarly named places in Aisne and Aube, as well as Origné in Mayenne. However, there appears to be no evidence for Oreng as a spelling of Origny or Origné, which derive from an earlier Aurigniacus. Whether this locative name ever lies behind the English surname is uncertain, as the Norman family disappears from record after 1166, but it may be the source of the Huguenot surname first noted in England in the 17th century.

Further information: Contrary to Reaney’s assertion, there does not appear to be a place named Orange in Mayenne.

Early bearers: William de Oreng, 1086 in Domesday Book (Bucks); Willelm de Oreng, 1166 in Red Book of the Exchequer; Ester Orange, 1686 in IGI (Threadneedle Street French Huguenot, London); Judith Orange, 1689 in IGI (Spitalfields, Middx).

English: locative name, apparently from Orleigh Court in Buckland Brewer (Devon), which is recorded as Ordlegh in 1193 and Orlegh in 1416, although the number of early bearers recorded outside the county up to 1748 raises the possibility of additional unknown origins. The Devon place-name may derive from Old English ord ‘point, corner of land, promontory’ + lēah ‘wood, woodland clearing’.

Early bearers: Agn’ de Orley, 1381 in Poll Tax (Shenton, Leics); Alyce Orley, 1573 in IGI (Great Yarmouth, Norfolk); Edvardi Orley, 1585 in IGI (Eccles, Lancs); Elizabeth Orley, 1598 in IGI (Great Yarmouth, Norfolk); Thomas Orley, 1619 in IGI (Whitechapel, Middx); John Orley, 1748 in IGI (Seaton and Beer, Devon); Isaac Orley, 1771 in IGI (Acton, Suffolk); Robert Orley, 1772 in IGI (Freshwater, IoW); Elizabeth Orley, 1773 in IGI (Branscombe, Devon).

English: unexplained. In Ireland it may be a variant of Ormond, but the distribution and early examples in England suggest that this is not a satisfactory explanation of the English surname.

Early bearers: Thomas Ormund, 1379 in Poll Tax (Aismunderby with Bondgate, WR Yorks); Joan Orman, 1573 in IGI (Brenzett, Kent); Margareta Orman, 1603 in IGI (Chester, Cheshire); Thomas Orman, 1719 in IGI (Marlborough, Wilts); Benjamin Ormen, 1743 in IGI (Saint Sepulchre, London); William Orman Or Almond, 1769 in IGI (Kings Cliffe, Northants).

Ormandy

- Current frequencies: GB 257, Ireland 3
- Main GB location 1881: Lancs

English: of uncertain origin. Bardsley’s derivation from Osmotherley, in Ulverston (Lancs), is linguistically difficult to justify; compare Osmotherly. An alternative possibility is a N Lancs pronunciation of the Middle English surname (N)ormantwait, from Ormathwaite, in Underskiddaw (Cumb). The surname is recorded with spellings such as Nordmanthait, about 1160 in the Fountains Abbey Cartulary, Normanwait and Normantwait, 1246 in Assize Rolls (Lancs), and provides the only medieval evidence for the place-name. By the 16th century the place-name had lost the initial N-, appearing in local parish registers as Ormatwhat, 1564, and Ormaytwhat, 1566. If this is the correct explanation of Ormandy, it shows an unusually drastic reduction of the final syllable, and is probably not a safe inference without further evidence.

Further information: The date of Wilson’s citation in Reaney and Wilson of Ellen Ormandie, 1296 in Lancs Wills, appears to be an error; the printed wills date from 1457 to 1680.

Early bearers: Elin Ormundie, 1546 in IGI (Ulverston, Lancs); William Ormandy, 1625 in IGI (Lancaster, Lancs); Mary Ormondy, 1673 in IGI (Cartmel, Lancs); Richard Ormandie, of Ulverston, John Ormondy, of Smiddy Greene, in Ulverston, 1675 in Lancs Wills; Usler Ormady, 1675 in IGI (Ulverston, Lancs); William Ormany, 1708 in IGI (Kendal, Westm); William Ormandy, 1783, William Armondy, 1840 in IGI (Preston, Lancs).

English: locative name from a lost place in Haslington (Cheshire), whose name survives there in Homeshaw Lane, and which is recorded as Ormeswode vel Ormeshalgh in 1419. Considering this form of the place-name, along with the early bearers from 1288, 1299, and 1408 below, the place-name appears to derive from the Old Scandinavian personal name Ormr, with variation between Old English sceaga ‘small wood, copse’, halh ‘nook, corner of land’, hyll ‘hill’, and wudu ‘wood’. The name has sometimes been confused with Hampshire and possibly also with Helmshaw, a now extinct surname from Helmsore (Lancs).

1 English: usually a de-aspirated variant of Horridge.

2 English: relationship name, sometimes perhaps from the Middle English personal name Ordric, Orrich (Old English Ordric, from ord ‘point, spear’ + ric ‘power, realm’), with post-medieval voicing of the final consonant to give Orridge.

Early bearers: given names: Ordric(us), 1086 in Domesday Book (Beds, Bucks, Cambs, Devon, Herefs, Kent, Notts, Shrops, Northants, Somerset, Suffolk, Warwicks); Ordricus, 1186–8 in Bury Saint Edmunds Kalendar (Suffolk); Orrich’ filius Leuesun’, 1209 in Feet of Fines (Norfolk).

1 English: probably in most instances a variant of Orridge, with sibilant of the final palatal consonant to /ʃ/ and /s/ to give (H)orrish and (H)orris. It was sometimes associated with the personal name Horace in modern times by folk etymology. Some of the following bearers could alternatively belong with (2).

Early bearers: Issable Orris, 1549 in IGI (Great Woolstone, Bucks); Allexander Orris, 1611 in IGI (West Bromwich, Staffs); Gualter Orris, 1636 in IGI (Covehithe, Suffolk); Lawrance Horish, 1704 in IGI (Godalming, Surrey); Benjamin Horace, 1715 in IGI (Wellingborough, Northants); John Orriss, 1733 in IGI (Buxhall, Suffolk); Daniel Horris, 1735 in IGI (Bromsgrove, Worcs); Mary Horace, 1789 in IGI (Eccles, Lancs); Maria Horrace, 1807 in IGI (Sudbury, Suffolk).

2 English: relationship name, occasionally perhaps from the Middle English personal name Orace (Latin Horatius, possibly of Etruscan origin) but it was exceptionally rare in medieval England and is unlikely to be the main source of the surname.

Early bearers: given names: Oratius presbiter, 1193 in Pipe Rolls (Essex).

surnames: Richard Oras, 1312 in Feet of Fines (Essex).

Orritt

Variants: Orrett

- Current frequencies: GB 271, Ireland 0
- GB frequency 1881: 98
- Main GB location 1881: Lancs

1 English: relationship name, perhaps from the Middle English personal name Ured (spelled Ored), a reduced form of either Old English Wulfræd (from wulf 'wolf' + ræd 'advice', or possibly Old English Wulfrith, from frithu 'peace'). Wulfræd is evidenced in 12th-century E Anglia and may survive as a surname there in Urry, Oury, and Hurry, with the final syllable reflecting an Anglo-Norman pronunciation of -(f)red and -(f)rith. Compare Alfrey.

Further information: The development to Orritt shows a radical reduction of the Old English forms, with loss of initial W- and of interconsonantal -f-, assimilation of -lr- to -rr-, and a change of final -d or -th to -t.

Early bearers: given names: Wulureda (sic for Wuluredu), 1186–8 in Bury Saint Edmunds Calendar (Suffolk); W'lvred', 1199 in Curia Regis Rolls (Norfolk); Huredus, about 1250 in Ramsey Cartulary (Hunts). surnames: Richard son of Wlured, 1199 in Feet of Fines (Suffolk); Wuluord 'son of' Wulured, mid 13th cent., in Canterbury Cathedral Archives; William Orede, 1275 in Hundred Rolls (Suffolk); Nicholas Ored, 1279 in Hundred Rolls (Oxon); Geoffrey Orede, 1289 in Suffolk Record Office (Ipswich) (Sancroft, South Elmham, Suffolk); Walterus Holured, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Suffolk); Jacobus Orehed, 1573 in IGI (Audley, Staffs); Margaret Orrett, 1595 in IGI (Shipbourne, Kent); Cathren Orehead, 1595 in IGI (Frodsham, Cheshire); Henry Orett, 1603, in IGI (Eastham, Cheshire); Margret Orett, 1626, Peggy Orret, 1781, John Orrett, 1837 in IGI (Wigan, Lancs); Henry Orrat, 1663, Hannah Orrett, 1746 in IGI (Chester, Cheshire); Mary Ann Orrett, 1818 in IGI (Swynerton, Staffs).

References: Seltén, Anglo-Saxon Heritage, II, pp. 174, 180.
2 English: locative name; the earliest Cheshire and Staffs examples in (1) take the form Orehe(a)d, which could reflect folk etymologizing of Orrett, or could suggest an alternative derivation from an unidentified minor place-name, apparently named with Old English hæafod 'head, hilltop, promontory' as the final element.

English: locative name from Orston (Notts), which is recorded as Oschintone in 1086, Orskinton in 1197, and Horseton and Orston in 1272. The place-name probably means 'farmstead associated with a man called Ōsica', from an Old English personal name **Ōsica* + the connective particle -ing- + tūn 'farmstead, settlement', with the introduction of -r- to differentiate the place from nearby Ossington (see Osenton), and also possibly due to confusion with Middle English hors 'horse'.

Orton

Variants: Urton

- Current frequencies: GB 3702, Ireland 12
- Main GB location 1881: scattered: esp. Leics; Warwicks

English: locative name from any of the many places called Orton, notably in Leics, Warwicks, Northants, Hunts, and Westm. All those in England share a second element from Old English tūn 'farmstead, settlement', but the first element in each case is more difficult to determine. Examples in Warwicks and Hunts are on the banks of rivers, so there it is probably Old English ofer 'riverbank'; in other cases it is impossible to decide between ofer 'ridge' and uferra 'upper'. Orton in Westm is probably named with the Old Scandinavian byname Orri 'blackcock' (the male black grouse). Orton near Fochabers, Scotland, is of uncertain etymology. Compare Overton.

The Cambs place-name derives from Old English ord 'point, corner of land, promontory' + wella 'well, spring, stream'. - English: unexplained. If the -gh is genuine, perhaps from Middle English wough ‘wrong, perverse, lying, wicked, bent’, but forms with W-gh do not appear in SW England and are rare and ambiguous elsewhere. If the -f is genuine, perhaps from Middle English offe ‘morsel, small piece’, as a nickname for a small person, but this word is rare and late, and perhaps bookish. The place takes its name from the River Hull + Old English brycg 'bridge'. A late Middle English change of -ul- to -ol-, and then to -ou-, occurs in Owram (from the ER Yorks place-name Ulrome). Similarly, (H)ulbrigg could have developed to (H)oubrig. (ii) locative name. Alternatively Owbridge might have derived from Howe Bridge in Malton (NR Yorks), which is recorded as ponte de Hou in the 12th and 13th centuries and as ponte de How in the 15th century (ponte being the dative form of Latin pons 'bridge'). The place-name derives from Old English hōh 'heel, spur of land' + brycg. The post-medieval bearers cited here may alternatively belong with (2).

Early bearers: Richard de Hulbrigg, 1353 in Redmonds, Dictionary of Yorks Surnames (Beverley, ER Yorks); Robert Owbrig, 1520 in York Registry Wills (Hornsea, ER Yorks); John Owbridge, 1589 in York Registry Wills (Skerne, ER Yorks); Jno. Owbridge, 1618 in IGI (Filey, ER Yorks); Mary Owbrig, 1665 in IGI (Scarborough, ER Yorks); Mary Owbridge, 1694, Sarah Oubridge, 1713 in IGI (Humbleton, ER Yorks); William Howbridge, 1798 in IGI (Kilham, ER Yorks).

References: Redmonds, Dictionary of Yorks Surnames; Place-Names of ER Yorks, p. 202; Place-Names of NR Yorks, p. 44.

2 English: variant of Outbridge, an obsolete pronunciation of Oughtibridge, a WR Yorks name. Redmonds, Dictionary of Yorks Surnames notes that a man named German Owbridge or Outbridge of Meadow Lane is recorded in 1651 in the Leeds Parish Registers, and that in the 1672 Hearth Tax Henry Outbridg was registered in Market Weighton (ER Yorks), where Owbridge is also on record.

Early bearers: Agnes Owbridge, 1646 in IGI (Leeds, WR Yorks); Jane Owbridge, 1671, John Oubridge, 1687 in IGI (Market Weighton, ER Yorks); Widow Oughbridge, 1672 in Hearth Tax (Tickhill, WR Yorks); Stainton Owbridge, 1786 in IGI (Burton upon Stather, Lincs).

1 Scottish: locative name, perhaps from a variant of Older Scots uver 'at a higher level', denoting someone who lived at a higher level in a village or perhaps on a higher floor of a tenement.

2 English: locative name from Ower in Copythorne or Ower in Fawley (both Hants), Owermoigne (Dorset), The Nower (Kent), or from residence near a bank (Old English ōfer) or a steep slope or ridge (Old English ofer). The forms of both Hants place-names have been confused; they are recorded as Ore in 1284 and Oure in 1327. Based on topography, Ower in Copythorne probably derives from Old English ofer 'hill, slope, ridge', and Ower in Fawley from Old English ōra 'border, bank, edge'. Owermoigne (Dorset) is recorded as Ogre in 1086 and 1267; it appears to derive from an Old English word **ogre*, of uncertain origin, perhaps meaning 'corner, edge' or 'gap'. The Nower (Kent) probably derives from Old English ōfer or ofer, with initial N- from misdivision of Middle English atten over 'at the bank or hill'. Compare Noar.

Early bearers: Alexander del Owre, 1240 in Kent Place-Names p. 72; Richard de Owre, 1310 in Balliol Deeds (Oxford); Thomas Ower, 1559 in IGI (Fletching, Sussex); Alice Ower, 1578 in IGI (Fareham, Hants); Tamsen Ower, 1620 in IGI (Hothfield, Kent); Mary Ower, 1645 in IGI (Weston and Wixhill, Shrops); Lucy Ower, 1684 in IGI (Saint Dionis Backchurch, London).

The Suffolk place-name probably derives from Old English pāl ‘stake, pole’ + grāf ‘grove’; however, if the -ll- in the 11th century form is significant, the initial element could be an Old English personal name **Palla* or Old English **pall* ‘ledge’.

1 Chinese: Cantonese form of the Chinese surname 彭 (Peng in Mandarin pinyin), meaning 'next to, beside' in ancient Chinese: (i) from the second element of the place-name Da Peng (大彭), the name of an ancient fief (located in present-day Jiangsu province) that granted to Jian Keng, also known as Peng Zu (彭祖), the third son of Lu Zhong, said to be a descendant of the legendary Huang Di, the 'Yellow Emperor' (traditional dates 2697–2599 BC). After the state of Da Peng was annexed in around 1282 BC, Peng (彭) was adopted as a surname. According to legend, Peng Zu lived for over 800 years; his name came to symbolize longevity, like Methuselah in the West. (ii) for some families, this surname can be traced back to minority ethnic groups in ancient West and South China.

2 Chinese: Mandarin pronunciation of the Chinese surname 龐 (Pong in Cantonese romanization), meaning 'mammoth', 'massive', or 'face' in Chinese: (i) from the place-name Pang (龐), the name of a fief (located in SE Hancheng in Shaanxi province) granted to descendants of Bi Gong Gao, the fifteenth son of the virtuous Zhou Wen Wang (1152–1056 BC; see Zhou (1)). (ii) in some families, this surname goes back to various minority ethnic groups in ancient western China.

3 Chinese: Mandarin pronunciation of the Chinese surname 逢 (Fung or Fong in Cantonese romanization): (i) borne by descendants of Pang Bolin (逢伯凌), an official who lived during the Shang dynasty (1600–1046 BC). (ii) said to be borne by descendants of Pang Meng (逢孟), a legendary figure who was versed in archery during the early Xia dynasty (2070–1600 BC).

4 Chinese: Teochew, Hokkien, and Taiwanese form of the Chinese surname 馮, see Fung (1). The dialects in which this form is used can be found in E Guangdong, Fujian, and Taiwan, from where many people migrated to Singapore, Malaysia, and other parts of SE Asia.

5 Chinese: non-standard romanization of the Chinese surname 潘, see Poon (1).

6 Chinese: non-standard romanization of the Chinese surname 范, see Fan (1).

7 Korean: (방; Chinese character 方, meaning 'direction'). There are actually five Chinese characters for this surname; however, only 方 is common enough to warrant treatment here. The clan associated with this character is the Onyang Pang, which was founded by a scholar of the Tang Chinese Royal Academy called Pang Chi (方智), who lived in Hunan province, China, until his migration to Shilla in AD 669. There is a gap in the records after Pang Chi; the ancestor who settled in the Onyang area of Ch'ungch'ong south province at the beginning of the Koryŏ kingdom was named Pang Un (方雲). Three other Pang clans are descended from the Onyang Pang clan.

Pankhurst

- Current frequencies: GB 1264, Ireland 19
  - GB frequency 1881: 1041
  - Main GB location 1881: SE England: esp. Kent
- 1 English: (i) locative name, perhaps from Pinkhurst in Slinfold (Sussex), which is recorded as Pinkhurst in 1319 and Penkehurst in 1565, or Pinkhurst Farm in Abinger (Surrey), which is recorded as Pinkehurst in 1241. The place-names derive from the Old English personal name Pinca + Old English hyrst 'hillock, copse'. (ii) locative name, alternatively perhaps from Pankhurst in Surrey, but there are no medieval forms for the place-name. Its earliest attestation is Pentecost alias Panchurst in 1605, and the editors of Place-Names of Surrey infer that it was named after the family of John Pentecost, who was taxator for Godley Hundred in 1332 (Subsidy Rolls, Surrey).

There is no evidence, however, that the Pentecost family lived at Pankhurst. McKinley notes that Richard Pankhurst alias Pentecost (1770) lived in Mayfield, Sussex, where both surnames had 'existed for centuries'. Whether the surname Pankhurst was a post-medieval corruption of Pentecost or vice versa, it is clear that the names had come to be regarded as interchangeable.

Early bearers: [ . . . de] Pinkeherst, 1228 in Close Rolls, 1230 in Feet of Fines (Sussex); [ . . . de] Pinkehurst, 1279 in Assize Rolls (Surrey); Rychard Pencost, 1560 in Sussex Wills (Sussex); John Pankurst, 1568 in IGI (Buxted, Sussex); Alice Pankhurst, 1571, Anne Penkherst, 1632, in IGI (Rotherfield, Sussex); Joane Pankherst, 1585, Agnes Pankerst, 1614, Elizabeth Pankhurst, 1615, Unfaigned Pankest, 1622, Joane Panke, 1623 in IGI (Heathfield, Sussex); John Pankherst, 1609, Elizabeth Bankhurst, 1777 in IGI (Cranbrook, Kent); Willmi. Further information: Paris Hall in North Weald Bassett (Essex), named after Richard de Paris (1276), is recorded as Parrishe in 1593 (Place-Names of Essex, p. 87). This development of final sh from s is found already in 1319 in Wrabenash for Wrabness (Place-Names of Essex, p. 358). Consequently, William de Parysch, 1379 in Yorks Poll Tax, is probably an example of the same development. Derivation from parish is very unlikely. Compare Morrish and Norrish.

3 Korean (Pak, 박; Chinese character 朴, meaning ‘simple’). This is the third most common surname in Korea and is found in every part of the peninsula. The Pak clans claim no founding ancestors from foreign lands—all are native to Korea. Although some sources indicate that there are 270 Pak clans, only 44 of these can be documented, and much of their early history is shrouded in myth and legend. All Pak clans spring from a single semi-mythological ancestor named Pak Hyökköse (朴赫; 居世). Before the establishment of the Shilla kingdom the southern tip of the peninsula is said to have been ruled by six elders, leaders of the six tribes who inhabited that part of the country. In AD 619 a leader, Pak Hyökköse, arrived at the foot of a mountain in Kyöngju in Kyöngsang north province. Legend has it that he was inside a golden gourd-shaped egg.

Parkar

When the egg was opened, Pak Hyökköse emerged and, after taking a wife (who was borne on the back of a dragon), he established the new Shilla kingdom. The word pak in Korean (박; 朴) can mean either ‘gourd’ or ‘to shine brightly’, and the surname Pak is said to denote either the gourd-shaped egg in which the youth was found or the light that is said to have radiated from his head.

Parmley

- Current frequencies: GB 246, Ireland 2
- GB frequency 1881: 139
- Main GB location 1881: N England: esp. Durham and Cumb

English: locative name, perhaps from a post-medieval form of Parmentley in Whitfield (Northumb), which is recorded as Parmaly in 1698. The place-name appears to derive from Middle English permain 'pear' (Old French parmain, permain) + leie 'clearing, meadow' (Old English lēah 'wood, woodland clearing').

Early bearers: John Parmeley, 1578, John Parmely, 1620 in IGI (Lewes, Sussex); Cuthbert Parmeley, 1589 in IGI (Hamsterley, Durham); Anne Parmaly, 1773 in IGI (Cockfield, Durham); John Parmley, 1761 in IGI (Stockton on Tees, Durham); William Parmley, 1784 in IGI (Carlisle, Cumb).

Parnaby

Variants: Barnaby

- GB frequency 1881: 344

• Main GB location 1881: Durham and Yorks

English: (i) perhaps, as suggested in Redmonds, Dictionary of Yorks Surnames, an altered form of Parlby (Old French Parlebiein 'speak well').

Interchange of /n/ and /l/ is quite common in place-names and surnames. In this instance it may have been influenced by the co-occurrence of Farnaby in the same counties (NR Yorks, Cambs, Kent) but there is no evidence that either name was a variant of the other. (ii) doubtfully perhaps a variant of Barnaby with the initial consonant unvoiced. With the early bearers given below compare Elizabeth Barneby, 1672 in IGI (Cherry Hinton, Cambs) and John Barnaby, 1828 in IGI (Finghall, NR Yorks), but these are so much later than the earliest records of Parnaby in those parishes (1543, 1670), that it is more likely that Barnaby is a local pronunciation of Parnaby in (i), by confusion of the two names.

Early bearers: Myldred Parnby, 1543 in IGI (Cherry Hinton, Cambs); William Parneby, 1618 in IGI (Hardwick, Cambs); William Parnbye or Parnby, 1636 in PROB 11 (Farningham, Kent); John Parnabie, 1646 in Redmonds, Dictionary of Yorks Surnames (Auckland, Durham); John Parnaby, 1670 in IGI (Finghall, NR Yorks).

English: locative name from Parnacott in Pyworthy (Devon), which is recorded as Parnyngcot in 1306 and Pyarnyngacote in 1311. The etymology of the place-name is unknown.

- Main GB location 1881: widespread in England: esp. Devon; Norfolk; Lancs

Further information: This name was brought to Ireland from Cheshire in the 17th century, by a family who had been supporters of Cromwell during the English Civil War. Charles Stewart Parnell, who founded the Irish Parliamentary Party in 1882, was a descendant of this family.

Early bearers: given names: Petronilla 1189–99 in Danelaw Documents (Lincs); Purnelle Kepeherme, 1249, Petronille Kepeharm, 1250, Peronelle Kepeharm, 1253 in Oseney Cartulary (Oxon); Pernel la Brune, 1268, Parnell la Brune, 1280 in Assize Rolls (Somerset); Parnwell Graystocke, 1670 in Lancs Wills.

Parnham

Variants: Parnum

- Main GB location 1881: Notts

English: locative name, perhaps from Parnham in Beaminster (Dorset), which is recorded as Perham in 1228 and Parnham in 1431. The place-name appears to derive from Old English peru 'pear' + hām 'village, homestead' or hamm 'enclosure, water meadow', but forms with -n- from the 15th century cannot be explained. Alternatively, perhaps from a lost or unidentified place so named.

1 English: status name, nickname, occupational name from Middle English persone, persoun 'priest, parson' (Old French persone).

Further information: The status of medieval bearers of the surname is uncertain. Priests were generally known by a locative surname rather than by a surname denoting their role in the church. Nor would they commonly appear in lay tax records such as Subsidy Rolls and Poll Taxes. They were not allowed to marry, but doubtless many had illegitimate children, some of whom may have been given 'parson' as a surname. Alternatively some original bearers may have been given it as a nickname (compare Priest, Bishop, Monk) or it may have been an occupational name for someone who worked for the parson (a reduced form of del Person perhaps).

Early bearers: William Persun, 1197 in Pipe Rolls (Norfolk); Richard la Persone, 1221 in Assize Rolls (Worcs); Robert Parson, 1296 in Subsidy Rolls (Sussex); Thomas Persoun, 1332 in Subsidy Rolls (Kingskersell, Devon); Petrus Person, 1379 in Poll Tax (Melbury Osmond, Dorset); Johannes Person, 1379 in Poll Tax (Banbury, Oxon); Johannes Person, 1379 in Poll Tax (Othey, Somerset); Walterus Person, 1381 in Poll Tax (Bramley, Surrey); Henricus le Person', 1381 in Poll Tax (Ollerton, Shrops); Johanna del Persone, 1379 in Poll Tax (Braunston, Northants); William Parson, 1487 in PROB 11 (Saint Dunstan Fleet Street, City of London); Thomas Parson, 1572 in PROB 11 (Steyning, Sussex); Thomas Parson, 1575 in PROB 11 (Bradninch, Devon); Ralph Parson, 1582 in IGI (Ormskirk, Lancs); George Parson, 1600 in IGI (Pontefract, WR Yorks).

  - Main GB location 1881: Suffolk; London; Herts
- English: nickname from the Middle English borrowing of the opening words of the Latin form of the Lord's Prayer, pater noster 'our Father'. The phrase had been adopted into English as a noun paternoster meaning 'the Lord's Prayer' by the late 12th century and is recorded with the sense 'rosary' from about 1275 onwards, with the short form pater being recorded before about 1400 in MED (see Pater). As a surname, it usually represents a shortening of the fuller paternosterer and signified a maker or seller of rosaries; compare William le Paternoster, 1280–95 in London Letter Books A, B, Jordan paternosterer, 1303 in London Court Rolls. Further information: There is a Paternoster Row near Saint Paul's Cathedral (London) and another near Carlisle Cathedral, and there was formerly one near Chertsey Abbey, all centres of this once important industry. In the 14th century the term used was paternostermaker: Nicholas Paternostermaker, 1388 in London Court Rolls. Sometimes the name is due to the service by which land was held. In the reign of Edward I John Paternoster held a virgate of land in East Hendred (Berks) now called Paternoster Bank by service of saying a paternoster every day for the King's soul (Place-Names of Surrey, p. 380). In the same reign Alice Paternoster held land in Pusey in the same county by service of saying five paternosters a day for the souls of the King's ancestors, and Richard Paternoster, on succeeding to an estate in the same parish, instead of paying a sum of money as a relief, said the Lord's Prayer thrice

1 Norman, Irish, Scottish, English: relationship name from the Anglo-Norman French, Middle English, and Older Scots personal name Patrick (Latin Patricius, Old Irish Patraicc). See also Peden and McPadden, derived from pet forms of Irish Patraicc. Some of the following English early bearers may alternatively belong under (2).

Further information: Latin Patricius 'patrician, member of the patrician class' was in occasional use as a given name among early Christians, including Saint Patrick, the 5th-century apostle of Ireland, who was born in Britain. It appears in Old Irish as Patraicc, but out of respect for the saint the native Irish did not use it as a given name except in devotional phrases such as Gilla Pátraic 'servant of Patrick' (see Kilpatrick) and Máel Pátraic 'devotee of Patrick' (the source of the now extinct Mulpatrick). It was the Anglo-Normans who adopted Patrick as a given name in Ireland (hence Fitzpatrick), and who brought it to England and to Scotland, where it also took the Gaelic form Pádraig. From at least the late medieval period it has been especially popular in W Scotland (where it has been much confused with Peter). It was from there that Scottish settlers took the name to Ulster in the 17th century, since when it has become one of Ireland's most popular given names. Early bearers: given names: Patricius, 1175–96 in Yorks Charters; Patricius clericus, 1214 in Curia Regis Rolls (Suffolk).

1 English: locative name, mostly from Peak, the district of rugged hills in north-west Derbys and N Staffs named with Old English **pēac* 'hill, knoll, peak'. One family bearing the derived surname was of high status; Richard de Pech (-ch is an Anglo-Norman French spelling of /k/) was son of Ranulf, sheriff of Notts (mid-12th cent. in Blyth Cartulary). Some of the following examples may derive from unidentified minor places named with the same word (especially in Staffs, perhaps) or belong with the Devon or Sussex names in (2) and (3).

Early bearers: Helias de Pech, 1166 in Pipe Rolls (Derbys and Notts); Richard del Pec, 1192 in Eynsham Cartulary (Oxon); Rob't' del Pech, late 12th cent. in Durham Liber Vitae; Will. del Pec, 1221 in Assize Rolls (Worcs); John de Pek, 1270 in Patent Rolls (Kenilworth, Warwicks); John del Peck, about 1275 in Hundred Rolls (London); Henry del Peck, about 1275 in Hundred Rolls (Lincs); Rob. atte Pek, 1294 in Inquisitiones post Mortem (Worcs); John de Pek, 1307 in Subsidy Rolls (Saint Albans, Herts); Ric' de le Peek', 1308 in Nottingham Borough Court Rolls (Notts); William atte Peke, 1310 in London Letter Books D (London); William Pecke, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Hazleton, Gloucs); Rob. del pek, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Audley, Staffs); Richard de Peke, parson, 1339 in Patent Rolls (Goadby, Leics); William Peke, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Cambs); Johannes Pekke, 1379 in Poll Tax (Rushden, Northants); Ricardus Pec, 1379 in Poll Tax (Solihull, Warwicks); Thomas del Pecke, 1379 in Poll Tax (Doncaster, WR Yorks); Johannes Peck, 1381 in Poll Tax (Bocking, Essex); Thoma Pekke, 1381 in Poll Tax (Chedworth, Gloucs); John Peek, vicar, 1442 in York Registry Wills (Lenton, Notts); Tho. References: Place-Names of Sussex, p. 399.

4 English: nickname, possibly, as Reaney suggests, from the Middle English word in (1), used for a stout, thick-set man, but it is doubtful because there seem to be no parallels among other Middle English words meaning 'hill' for such a metaphorical transfer of sense. It is more likely that the French definite article le in the following examples is a scribal substitution for de, a not uncommon clerical practice.

Early bearers: Hugh le Pec, 1219 in Feet of Fines (Alton, Hants); Henrico le Pek, 1297 in Earldom of Cornwall Accounts (Sussex); Dulcia le Pek, 1307 in Subsidy Rolls (Stortford Without, Herts); Martin le Peec, 1296, Richard le Pek, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Horsham borough, Sussex); John Pek, 1327, John le Pek, 1332 in Subsidy Rolls (Seaford, Sussex); Johannes le Peke, 1377 in Poll Tax (Derby, Derbys).

Norman, English: nickname, according to Reaney from Old French percheaie 'pierce hedge' (Old French percer 'to pierce, penetrate' + haie 'hedge, fence'), perhaps with the sense of someone breaking into an enclosure. Percheaie is the name of one of the sons of the foxes Renart and Hermeline in the medieval French epic Roman de Renart, whose earliest known version is from the 1170s. The surname is older than that, but it may originate in a nickname for the fox 'enclosure piercer', perhaps amounting to 'chicken thief'.

Further information: The name may also have been confused with Perey, which originates in a place-name; note for example Henry de Percehay, a justice of the south-western assize circuit, 1376 in TNA. For the structure, compare the French surnames Percebois 'pierce-wood', said to be from a beetle, and Percepied 'pierce-foot', said to be from the plant Alchemilla spp., used as a vulnerary.

Early bearers: Ralph Percheaie, 1086 in Domesday Book (Berks); Walter Percheaie, 1168 in Pipe Rolls (Yorks); Walter Percehay, 1280 in Gisborough Cartulary (Yorks); Ralph Parcehay, 1247 in Assize Rolls (Beds); Roger Perseye, 1331 in Ancient Deeds vi (Beds); Richard Persehey, 1365 in Feet of Fines (Aspley Guise, Beds); Willelmus Parcehay, 1377 in Poll Tax (Yeoford, Devon); Eadmundi Pearcy, 1551 in IGI (Epworth, Lincs); Thomas Pearcie, 1592 in PROB 11 (Fordingbridge, Hants); Thomas Pearcy, 1652 in Parish Registers (Rothwell, WR Yorks); John Piercey, 1667 in IGI (Uffculme, Devon).

English: locative name from Pennington (in Furness, Lancs), which is recorded as Penyngton in 1327, Pennington in Leigh (Lancs), which is recorded as Pinington in 1246, or Pennington (Hants), which is recorded as Penintune in the 13th century. The Hants place-name and the Lancs place-name in Furness derive from Old English pening ‘penny’ + tūn ‘farmstead, estate’. Pennington in Leigh (Lancs) probably derives from the Old English personal name Pinna + the Old English group-name suffix -ingas (genitive -inga-) + Old English tūn. The 1332 early bearer form de Pynnington exclusively belongs to Pennington in Leigh.

The etymology of the place-name is uncertain, though it appears to derive from the French personal name Payn(e) + Middle English toun 'village, town, settlement' (Old English tūn 'farmstead, estate').

Early bearers: Edmund de Penson, 1297 in Earldom of Cornwall Accounts; Robert Penson, 1539 in IGI (Willoughby, Lincs); Peter Penson, 1559 in IGI (Cheswardine, Shrops); Alicia Penson, 1562 in IGI (Richards Castle, Herefs); Debora Penson, 1566 in IGI (Sandwich, Kent); Valentine Penson, 1567 in IGI (Saint Antholin Budge Row, London).

4 English: locative name from Pensham in Pershore (Worcs), which is recorded as Pedneshamme in 972 and Pensam in the 16th century. The place-name derives from an Old English personal name **Peden* (a derivative of **Peda*) + Old English hamm 'enclosure, water meadow'.

Variants: Pentlow

- Main GB location 1881: Northants, Cambs, and Hunts

English: locative name from Pentlow (Essex), which is recorded as Pentelawe in the 11th century. The etymology of the place-name is uncertain, though it may derive from an Old English personal name **Penta* + Old English hlāw 'hill, mound'.

Early bearers: Humfrey de Pentelawe, 1248 in Feet of Fines (Essex); Richard son of John de Pentlowe, 1271 in Patent Rolls (Pentlow, Essex); John de Pentelowe, 1287 in Place-Names of Herts, p. 191; James de Pentlowe, 1329 in Feet of Fines (Wilts); Thomas de Pentelowe, 1355 in Patent Rolls (Berks); Johanne Pentelowe, 1381 in Poll Tax (Winterbourne, Berks); John Pentelowe, clerk, 1430 in Feet of Fines (Ashendon, Bucks); Griffin Pentlowe, 1571 in IGI (Swineshead, Hunts); Michael Pentlow, 1603 in IGI (Eaton Socon, Beds); Thomas Pentlowe, 1611 in PROB 11 (Abbotts Ripton, Hunts); John Pentelo, 1780, Pentelow, 1796 in IGI (Elsworth, Cambs); Thos. ### Penter

Variants: Pender

- Main GB location 1881: Cornwall and Devon

English: (i) variant of Painter. For example, John Penter in Crowan, 1524 in Cornwall Subsidies, is almost certainly identical with John Paynter in Crowan, 1522 in Cornwall Military Survey. (ii) locative name, rarely, if ever, from one of several places in Cornwall named Pentire, derived from Middle Cornish **pen-tyr* 'headland' (pen 'head, top, end; promontory', tyr 'land'). This place-name probably did give rise to an occasional surname, such as that of Thomas Pentyre, 1543 in Cornwall Subsidies, who lived in Pentire, Saint Eval parish. Pronunciation of this surname (with stress on the second syllable as in the place-name) could have been altered to Penter (with stress on the first syllable), influenced perhaps by Penter/Painter in (i), but evidence is lacking. Pentyr(e) in the following examples is usually an alternative spelling of Penter or Painter.

Further information: Examples of Pentyre and Pentire as a surname include: Polidor Pentyre, 1608 in IGI (Saint Enoder, Cornwall); Gregory Pentire, 1609 in IGI (Plymouth, Devon); William Pentire, 1629 in IGI (Jacobstow, Cornwall); Brigert Pentire, 1668 in IGI (Cuby with Tregony, Cornwall); Henrici Pentire, 1697 in IGI (Gulval, Cornwall). Some of these, especially later examples, probably have stress on the second syllable, but whether they derive from the place-name or are altered pronunciations of Penter, influenced by the place-name, is difficult to say.

Early bearers: Gervasius Penter, 1379 in Poll Tax (Strettington, Sussex); John Pentyr, monk, 1414 in Patent Rolls (Boxgrove, Sussex); Thomas, John Pentier, 1442 in Feet of Fines (Devon, Cornwall); John Pentyre, 1522 in Cornwall Military Survey (Powder Hundred, Cornwall); John Pentir, 1524, Peris Paynter, 1545 in Cornwall Subsidies (Crowan, Cornwall); Thomas Penter, 1525 in Cornwall Subsidies (Bodmin, Cornwall); Alexander Pentyre, John Peynter, 1543, John Pentyre, 1545 in Cornwall Subsidies (Launcells, Cornwall); Davy Penter, 1569 in Cornwall Muster (Redruth, Cornwall); Herry Penter, 1569 in Cornwall Muster (Camborne, Cornwall); Johnes Penter, 1583 in IGI (Heswall, Cheshire); William Paynter, John Penter, 1608 in Cornwall Manorial Surveys (Boduel in Liskeard, Cornwall); Sibyll Penter, 1609, Digory Painter, 1619 in IGI (Saint Dominick, Cornwall); John Penter, 1657, Richard Painter, 1680 in IGI (Pancrasweek, Devon); John Penter or Painter, 1849 in IGI (Lanreath, Cornwall).

Further information: The origin of the name is linguistically uncertain but seems to have been understood by association with Old French percer 'to pierce, breach' + val 'valley'. French: relationship name, probably an English spelling of Perrigot, a diminutive of the French personal name Perrigaud, a compound of Pierre (Peter) + Rigaud (a pet form of Ric(h)ard). The first known bearer of this name in England is John Perago from Picardy, who is listed as an ironworker in the Sussex weald in a Denization roll of 1544. Aged 53, he was married and had lived in England for 30 years. Ironworkers from Picardy and Normandy settled in some numbers in the area during the 16th century. In the mid-17th century ironworkers with this name also appeared in N England. Redmonds, Dictionary of Yorks Surnames notes William Perigoe, forge-finer in Sheffield Parish Registers (1657), and John Perigo, worker at a forge in Headingley, in Leeds Parish Registers (1748). It is possible, but unproven, that they were descendants of John Perago.

1 English: locative name for someone who lived by a pear tree, a derivative of Middle English piry, pery, piry + -er. It was synonymous with Middle English atte Piry (etc.), with which it was freely exchanged as a family name (see Perry). With the Wiston early bearer below compare Robto atte Pyrie of Wiston, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Sussex) and Johannes, Walterus, and Willelmus atte Purye, 1379 in Poll Tax (Wiston, Sussex). This type of name, composed of a topographical term + -er, was particularly common in Sussex, Surrey, Kent, and Hants, but also appears elsewhere in S England. James atte Pyrie and John Peryere (1327 Subsidy Rolls) both lived in Dedham (Essex).

Further information: In the Middle English forms the ending -ier may sometimes have been replaced by -our. McKinley suggests that John le Perour, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Bidlington, Sussex) was the same man as John atte Purye, 1296 in Subsidy Rolls (Wiston, near Bidlington). There remains the possibility that Perour is a different name, see (2).

Early bearers: Ralph Puriere, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Pulborough, Sussex); William le Piryere, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Wiston, Sussex); Jane Perrier, 1570, John Perryer, 1604 in IGI (Kirdford, Sussex); Elizabeth Perrier, 1616 in IGI (Whitfield, Kent); Edward Perryer, 1645 in IGI (Sherfield English, Hants); Henry Purrier, 1812 in IGI (Pulborough, Sussex).

References: Surnames of Sussex, pp. 167–8.

2 Norman, English: occupational name, either from Old French perrier, perrieur ‘quarrier, stone breaker’ or, given the implied high social status of some of the early bearers, from an agent derivative of Old French and Middle English perri, pirri ‘precious stone’, hence ‘jeweller’. The early Sussex bearers may belong under (1).

Early bearers: Robert Perier, 1194 in Pipe Rolls (London); Henry le Perer, 1217 in Saint Bartholomew’s Hospital Cartulary (London); Rob. le Perer, 1255 in Assize Rolls (Essex); Rob’ le Perere, 1286 in Assize Rolls (Norfolk); Richard and Roger Le Perur, and Rob. Le Perrr, 1288 in Assize Rolls (Sussex); John Periere, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Essex); Jane Perrier, 1570 in IGI (Kirdford, Sussex); Jhoane Perrier, 1603 in IGI (Quorndon, Leics); William Perrier, 1638 in IGI (Nunton and Bodenham, Wilts); Henry Perrier, 1642 in IGI (Guildford, Surrey); William Perrier, 1679 in IGI (Saint Mary at Hill, London).

1 English: nickname, variant of the Norman name Petchey (Old French peché, Middle English peche ‘sin’). - Norman: nickname from Old French pech(i)et, pech(i)é (Latin peccatum) ‘fault, sin’. The name has varied freely between the Old French form (with final -(i)é spelled -(i)e, -ee, and -y) and the synonymous Middle English form pec(c)he (see Petch). The stressed vowel in Pecché was short, so Petchey and Petch are closest to the original pronunciation of the name, but Peachey and Peach, with a lengthened vowel, are now much commoner. Further information: For William Pecché (or Peccatum) and his descendants in E Anglia and Essex, see Domesday People, p. 494 and Domesday Descendants, pp. 1063–4. Early bearers: Willelmus Peccatum, 1086 in Domesday Book (Essex, Suffolk, Norfolk); Rotbert Pecceð, bishop, 1123 in Anglo-Saxon Chronicle E (Coventry, Warwicks); Hamon Peccatum, 1130 in Pipe Roll 31Hen1 (Suffolk); William Pechie, 1190 in Pipe Rolls (Hants); Gilbert Pechie, 1200 in Pipe Rolls (Cambs); Richard Pechee, 1275 in Hundred Rolls (Norfolk);

  - Main GB location 1881: London and Essex
- English: nickname from Middle English plukken ‘to pull’ + rose ‘rose’. Compare John Pullerose, 1296 in Subsidy Rolls (Sussex) and William Pullerose, 1301 in Subsidy Rolls (Yorks). According to Patronymica Britannica, the medieval practice of holding lands by the annual rent of a rose survived into the 19th century: ‘A friend of mine holds a landed property on the borders of Ashdown Forest, Sussex, part of the Duchy of Lancaster, by one red rose. On the front of a farm-house belonging to him is a large rose tree, to which the reeve of the manor periodically comes, and either plucking or pulling a flower, sticks it into his button-hole, and walks off.’
- Further information: The suggestion in Partridge, Slang, at rose, that pluck a rose once meant ‘take a virginity’ cannot be substantiated. OED records the sense ‘(of a woman) to urinate or defecate’ from as early as 1607, but this would be inappropriate as a man’s nickname.

Norman, English: locative name from an unidentified place, or so it appears from the 12th-century spelling de Poritt. The preposition could be misleading, as it was sometimes added to Norman names of non-locative origins in order to give them a pseudo-gentry status, but Poritt without the preposition remains puzzling. A nickname from Old French and Middle English porret, the common or garden leek is unlikely for Hugh, who was a substantial landowner in the Whitby area, and at that date Poritt would also be an odd spelling of porret. On the other hand, there is no proof that later bearers of the surname Poret(t) in NR Yorks descended from Hugh's family, so their surname could alternatively represent the nickname; see Porrett (1).

Early bearers: Hugh de Poritt, 1100–35 in Whitby Chartulary (NR Yorks); William Poret, 1301 in Subsidy Rolls (Skinningrove, NR Yorks); Richard Poret, 1348 in Whitby Chartulary; William Porrett, 1459 in York Registry Wills (Lofthouse, NR Yorks); Margrett Porritt, 1610 in IGI (Kirkleatham, NR Yorks); Johanis. Further information: In London, Henry Puer or Poer (1300 in London Court Rolls) was probably of this nationality, but whether Geoffrey le Power (1299 in London Court Rolls) and John le Poer (1300 in London Court Rolls) came from Picardy or were nicknamed 'the poor' cannot be determined.

Early bearers: England: Drogo poher, 1127 in Cartae Antiquae (Gloucs); Walter le Poyer, 1162 in Danelaw Documents (Lincs); Hugo le Puhier, 1166 in Pipe Rolls (Shrops); Hugo Puher, 1170 in Pipe Rolls (Worcs); Power, 1584 in Fiants Elizabeth §4497 (Waterford).

2 English: nickname from Middle English povre, poure 'poor' (Latin pauper). This is probably a less common source of the name than (1) but forms such as poer, poure, and power cannot safely be assigned to Poher in (1). In the case of Geoffrey and William Pouere, 1221 in Cotton Tiberius B ii, they were customary tenants of the Bishop of Ely at Wetheringsett (Suffolk) and were not likely to be Picards.

Further information: Woulfe mistakenly gives this also as the meaning of the Norman Irish name (see 1), which in early records is found as le Poer, believing it to be a nickname for someone who has taken a vow of poverty.

Early bearers: Walter le Poure, 1163 in Eynsham Cartulary (Oxon); Hugo Pauper, 1191, le Pouere, 1206 in Oseney Cartulary (Oxon); Roger Pauper, le Poer, le Povr', 1211–12 in Curia Regis Rolls (Norfolk); Roger Pauper (le poure), 1230 in Pipe Rolls (Oxon); Johannes Poure, 1379 in Poll Tax (Chale, Hants); Johannes Pover, 1379 in Poll Tax (Burley in Wharfedale, WR Yorks).

Cornish: unexplained. Apparently from Middle Cornish **prad* 'meadow' (Modern Cornish pras), but there are insuperable difficulties in attributing it to one of the places now called Praze (Sithney, Grade, and Saint Erth parishes) because the Cornish change of [d] to [z] took place before the main era of surname development. That is, a surname from one of these places should be Prase or Praze, but there is no trace of such names.

- 1 Welsh: relationship name, anglicized form of the patronymic ap Rhys, also spelled ap Res, 'son of Rhys'. See Rees. Preece is interchangeable with Priec, the more common pronunciation of the name. There is evidence of confusion with Priest. From the Shrops parish registers, Morgan cites one instance of Preet for Preece, dated 1761, and another of Priest alias Price, dated 1707. Press is another version of both Preece and Priest. Some of the post-medieval examples listed below may alternatively derive from the locative name in (2).

2 Welsh: locative name, either from Prees (Shrops) or Preese (Lancs). The Shrops place-name occurs with voiceless /s/ and also voiced /z/. It occasionally appears with an -i- or -y- spelling, as in Prys, 1362, Pryse, 1416, Price about 1540, Pryce 1590. It is therefore impossible to distinguish post-medieval forms of the locative name from the Welsh patronymic in (1), and confusion of the names is very likely. The Shrops and Lancs place-names derive from Proto-Welsh **prēs* ‘brushwood, copse, grove’ (Welsh prys).

Early bearers: Philip de Pres, 1251 in Assize Rolls (Staffs); Richard de Prees, 1289 in Assize Rolls (Chesh, Cheshire); Hugo Presse, 1555 in IGI (Kirkham, Lancs); William Pres, 1585 in IGI (Ormskirk, Lancs); Raffe Preese, 1596 in IGI (Bunbury, Cheshire); Edward Preese, 1618, Ann Preece, 1692 in IGI (Chester, Cheshire); James Priese, 1599 in IGI (Lichfield, Staffs); Margerie Preece, 1618 in Parish Registers (Nantwich, Cheshire); Margaret Pries, 1669 in IGI (Clungunford, Shrops).

1 English: locative name from Church Preen (Shrops), which is recorded as Prene in 1086, Prona in 1255, and Preone in about 1291. Irish, Welsh: locative name from a lost place, Brontegeest, near Ghent in Flanders. In Wales this Flemish place-name (either directly transferred, or transmitted via a surname) seems to have given rise in a slightly modified form to the parish-name Prendergast (Pembrokes), near Haverfordwest (pronounced Prendergwest), which in turn gave rise to numerous minor place-names in Pembrokes. In Scotland the Flemish name likewise seems to have given rise to the place-name Prendergwest in Ayton (Berwicks). Flemish settlement in south-west Wales and south-east Scotland is documented from the 12th century. Compare Prendville.

Further information: Maurice Prendergast was one of the leaders of a small force of Norman knights and archers who landed at Bannow in Wexford in 1169, the advance guard of the invasion in 1170 by Richard de Clare, Earl of Pembroke (‘Strongbow’). Maurice was granted lands in Wexford. The surname in Britain is largely a reintroduction from Ireland.

Further information: Roger and John Prentiz were assessed in 1319 in Subsidy Rolls (London), and were presumably no longer apprentices. Either the surname had already become hereditary or it was a nickname, as Ekwall suggests. Compare John Kyng called Prentiz, mercer, 1350 in London Letter Books F, where Kyng appears to be the real surname, mercer the occupation, and Prentiz a nickname.

Preskett

English: locative name from Preesall (Lancs), which is recorded as Preshoued, Pressoure, and Preshou in about 1190. Considering these early forms, the place-name appears to have had three different types. In all cases the first element is probably the same as that in Preese (Lancs); see Preese (2). Forms like Preshoued suggest that the second element is Old Scandinavian hofuð 'head, headland, promontory'; forms like Pressoure suggest that the second element is Old English ofer 'bank, shore'; forms like Preshou suggest that the second element is Old Scandinavian haugr 'hill'.

Through assimilation Prestes will have become Press. In medieval SW England, wives or widows were often known by their husband's surname + genitival -s, as in Cristina Prestes, 1327 in Subsidy Rolls (Somerset), but it is unlikely that such a name became hereditary.

Pressey

English: locative name from Middle English prest, pri(e)st 'priest' + hei(e), hai(e) 'fence, enclosure' (Old English prēost, (ge)hæg), probably denoting a piece of enclosed church land. The name may be topographic, for someone who lived by such a plot, or toponymic, from a minor place so named, such as Priesthay Wood Farm in Wappenham (Northants), which is recorded as Presthey in 1330.

Early bearers: William Presthey, 1377 in Assize Rolls (Essex); Edmundus Presthey, 1381 in Poll Tax (Little Dunmow, Essex); Thomas Pressie or Pressye, 1560 in PROB 11 (Tetbury, Gloucs); Henry Pressy, 1562 in IGI (Saint Peter Cornhill, London); Richard Pressy, 1582 in PROB 11 (Wilsford, Wilts); Thomas Pressye, 1583 in IGI (Salisbury, Wilts); William Pressy, 1618 in IGI (Andover, Hants); Henery Pressy, 1694 in IGI (Newchurch, IoW).

Variants: Prissick

- GB frequency 1881: 26
- Main GB location 1881: NR Yorks; Ayr; Gloucs

1 English: (i) local pronunciation of Prestwick, probably from the Northumb place-name; see Prestwich. (ii) locative name, alternatively perhaps from Prissick Farm in Marton (NR Yorks), which is recorded only once in medieval documents, as Prestsic in 1199–1203, and appears to derive from Old English prēost 'priest' + sic 'small stream'. However, the surname is not on record before the 16th century and Redmonds, Dictionary of Yorks Surnames discounts this explanation in favour of that in (i), arguing that modern pronunciation of the NR Yorks place-name was influenced by the surname.

Early bearers: William Presike, 1538 in Rievaulx Cartulary (NR Yorks); Thomas Pressicke, 1591 in IGI (Stainton in Cleveland, NR Yorks); Simon Prissick, 1603 in IGI (Darlington, Durham); John Prissicke, 1654 in IGI (Stainton in Cleveland, NR Yorks); John

 • GB frequency 1881: 47
 • Main GB location 1881: Devon
 English: relationship name from the Middle English personal name Prestrejohm (latinzied as Prestreiohan). The name later became Pretrejohm, probably by assimilation of prestre 'priest' with the French form prêtre, and was subsequently reinterpreted as Prettyjohn after its origin became unfamiliar.
Further information: England was fully abreast of the news of the world in the 13th century, as shown by the occurrence of the name Prestreiohan borne by a Lincs attorney. Tales of a great Christian priest-king who ruled in central Asia were current in the 12th century in Europe. He is first mentioned by the chronicler Otto of Freising, who tells how Johannes Presbyter won a great victory over the Persians and Medes. Between 1165 and 1177, a forged letter purporting to come from him was circulated in Europe. Some rumour of this must have reached Lincs and caused at least one English child to be given the name of this fictitious eastern king (Sir Denison Ross, Travel and Travellers of the Middle Ages, ed. A.P. Newton, pp. 174–94).
Early bearers: Prestreiohan, 1219 in Assize Rolls (Lincs); Prestre Johan, 1301 in Subsidy Rolls (Yorks); John Prestrejohan, 1345, 1346 in Patent Rolls (Wells, Somerset); William Prettyjohn, 1557, Andrew Prettyjohn, 1583 in IGI (Stokeham, Devon); Thomas Prettyjohn, 1698 in IGI (Malborough, Devon); Nathaniel Prettejohn, 1760 in IGI (Chivelstone,

The name Pritchett is probably related but with palatal ch for k.

Pybus

- Current frequencies: GB 805, Ireland 5
- GB frequency 1881: 879
- Main GB location 1881: NR Yorks, WR Yorks, and Durham

English: (i) nickname, perhaps for someone with a prickly temperament, from Middle English **pikeshush* 'prickle bush', later simplified to Pybus(h) or Pybus(k). The word probably denoted a plant such as bramble, gorse, or wild rose. Redmonds, Dictionary of Yorks Surnames documents the reduction of Pikeshush to Pybus(h), citing Christopher Pykebushe or Pyebusk (1482–4); Thomas Pykebushe, Pibuske, or Pibus of Northallerton (1570–97). The change may have been influenced by folk etymology, reinterpreting the name as pie 'magpie' + bush, from the habit of magpies of perching on top of tall bushes. (ii) locative name; alternatively a name for someone who lived by a **pikeshush* 'prickle bush', or in a locality so named. Compare the minor place-names Pig Bush Farm in Alfold (Place-Names of Surrey, p. 224), which is recorded as Pykbushe in 1558, le Pykebushe in 1559, and Pigbush Farm in Wisborough Green (Place-Names of Sussex, p. 136), which is recorded as Pykebushe in 1609. However, there are no recorded surname examples with a preposition and the NR Yorks name, recorded from 1455, is probably best explained as (i).

Early bearers: Robert Pykebush, 1303 in Patent Rolls; John Pikebusk, 1327, 1328 in Wakefield Court Rolls (Stanley, WR Yorks); Robert Pykebussh, 1359 in Patent Rolls (Middx); Elena Pykebusk', 1379 in Poll Tax (Wheatley and Sandall, WR Yorks); Robertus Pykebus, 1381 in Poll Tax (Shalford, Surrey); William Pikebuske, 1455 in Yorks Deeds (Great Habton, NR Yorks); John Pickbush, 1564, Thomas Pickbushe, 1574, Jam. Pybush, 1702 in IGI (London); Margarita Pybus, 1566 in IGI (Patrick Brompton, NR Yorks); Anthonie Pybus, 1590 in IGI (Thirsk, NR Yorks); Anthony Pikebushe, 1597 in York Registry Wills (Bilsdale, NR Yorks); Roberte Pybus, 1600 in IGI (Kirkby Fleetham, NR Yorks).

  - GB frequency 1881: 4416
  - Main GB location 1881: Lancs; Norfolk
  - Main Irish location 1847–64: Sligo and Leitrim
- 1 English: (i) nickname from Middle English (Old French) pie 'magpie', perhaps given to someone who wore black and white clothing, had grey-streaked dark hair, or had a loud, chattering voice. Compare Chaucer's 'the jangling pye' (Parliament of Fowls, 345); 'She was pert and proud as a pye' (Reeve's Tale, A. 3950); 'Forth she goth as jolif as a pye' (Shipman's Tale, B. 1399); 'He . . . was ful of jargon as a flekked pye' (Merchant's Tale, E. 1848). The term was also used in Middle English to denote 'a sly person' (MED). (ii) nickname, occasionally from Middle English pie 'a baked dish of pastry', possibly used as a name for a pie-baker or pieman. Compare Peter Piebakere, 1320 in London Letter Books E, Adam le Piemakere, 1332 in Subsidy Rolls (London), John Pyman, 1524 in Subsidy Rolls (Suffolk).

Early bearers: Ralph Pie, 1177 in Pipe Rolls (Yorks); Eustace Pie, 1210 in Curia Regis Rolls (Cambs); William le Pye, 1296 in Subsidy Rolls (Sussex); John Pye, 1572 in IGI (Heigham, Norfolk); William Pye, 1657 in IGI (Ribchester, Lancs).

2 English: locative name for one who dwelt 'at the (sign of) the Pie or magpie'. There were two London taverns so named. Le Pye, 1456 in Ekwall, London Street-Names, p. 204, gave its name to Pye Corner, near Smithfield. The other inn was situated by the Thames: 'By-hynde the Pye atte Quenhith is a pryve place, which is a good shadowyng for theves', 1422 in London Letter Books E. An earlier reference to the inn sign occurs in 'atte Pye on the hope' (i.e. the magpie on the hoop), 1340 in London Pleas.

Early bearers: J. atte Pye, 1339 in Ewen, History, p. 230 (London); Stephen atte Pye, 1347 in London Letter Books F.

3 Welsh: relationship name; some families in the Pontrilas area of Herefs claim that their name is for Welsh ap Huw 'son of Huw'; if that is so, the form must be for English [ai] continuing Middle English [i:] by the Great Vowel Shift representing Welsh u, i.e. [i] for earlier [i], with final [w] lost. The normal outcome of ap Huw is Pugh.

Early bearers: Willmus Pye, 1583 in IGI (Sellack, Herefs); Thomas Pye, 1591 in IGI (Grosmont, Monmouths); Elizabeth Pie, 1625 in IGI (Much Dewchurch, Herefs).

Pygase

Variants: Pigace

- GB frequency 1881: 5
- Main GB location 1881: ER Yorks

Norman, English: nickname from Anglo-Norman French pigace, pigaz 'long, pointed shoe', a fashion item for wealthy young men from the 12th century onwards. The Yorks and Lincs surname may derive from the family of Ralph Pigaz (1218–19). Compare Pigace.

Further information: Reaney, following Dauzat, Noms de Personnes, suggests that Pigace is from a Normanno-Picard variant of Old French picois, Anglo-Norman French **piceis*, (hence Middle English pikeis) 'pickaxe', interpreting it as a name for a workman, but this is inappropriate to the high social status of the early bearers. See Domesday Descendants, p. 1071, for the knight's fee held by Gaufrid Pigace in 1166.

Channel Islands: believed to be a nickname for a cantankerous or uncooperative person. It is apparently from a Norman French expression involving carrue 'plough' (noun, or the stem of the verb; modern Guernsey French tchéruai 'to plough') + pé (earlier pel) 'fur'. The exact import of the expression 'plough fur' is not clear, but some sense of what it might mean is offered by the Jersey French expression touônner à r'bours-pé 'to plough against the (nap of the) fur', applied to mean 'to plough the first furrow, working in the opposite direction to what is needed for the rest of the task'. The modern form of the Guernsey name with Qu- reflects a pronunciation with /k-/ derived from continuing use of the spelling in older documents.

Further information: Reaney suggests an alternative derivation from Cowick Barton in Devon or from Quickburn in Essex, both from Old English cu + wic 'cow farm', but contraction to Quick is recorded only in the Essex place-name and this was after it was compounded with bury (Quickbury, 1594).
