Grammar Points

The Focus of This Lesson is "To Do Something"

食嘢？ 做嘢。

"To eat? To work."

嘢 (je5) means, "things" or "stuff." It's a slangy and informal word used to refer to general things. When you want to express an action without making it clear exactly what the object of the action is, try using the pattern: verb + 嘢 (je5). For example, to say that you're here to learn, use 學 (hok6) plus 嘢 (je5), which basically means "to study stuff". Take a look at our following examples for a better sense of how to use this:

For Example:

1. 一陣去食嘢？

jat1 zan6 heoi3 sik6 je5 ?

"(Let's) eat something later?"

2. 我要做嘢。

ngo5 jiu3 zou6 je5.

"I need to do something/ I need to work." (depending on the context)

Working at McDonald's

---

Nowadays, most McDonald's in Hong Kong are open twenty-four hours. The restaurants are popular places for people to go to spend a few hours in the evening, and not just because of the food. One of the smartest moves the restaurant chain has done has been to provide free air-conditioning, wireless Internet access, and free refills on coffee. This has increased the popularity of the restaurant with younger customers, especially younger people in their teens and twenties.
