GRAMMAR

To find out how much a product is while shopping, ask 呢個幾錢? (ni1 go3 gei2 cin2 ?) - "How much is this one?" This sentence is made up of two parts: the first is 呢個 ("this one"), which was covered in previous lessons, and the second part is 幾錢 (gei2 cin2?) - "How much money?" You can also replace 呢個 ("this") with 嗰個 ("that"). "How much is that one?" would be 嗰個幾錢.

CULTURAL INSIGHT

Quick Tip

---

Hong Kong has many outdoor markets. Don't worry about finding the deals because the deals will find you. Many street vendors will walk the streets, many from India and Pakistan offering to make you a nice suit or shirt. If you are in the market for a suit or shirt, this is quite convenient. If, however, you are not, the sales gimmicks soon become annoying.
